U.S. Makes Plane Issue
No. 1 Goal

Diplomatic Force
Exerted On Russia
For Jet Withdrawal

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is reported to be increasing its diplomatic pressure on Russia for prompt removal of Soviet jet bombers in Cuba.

Withdrawal of the planes — the last of the offensive weapons to which the United States made specific objection — dominates all U.S.-Soviet contacts, including personal exchanges between President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev, informants said.

Kennedy is understood to have made clear to Khrushchev that it will be impossible for the United States to move on any other front of diplomatic relations until the bomber problem is settled.

The President and his advisers regard it in large part as an issue of good faith, since Khrushchev promised to take from Cuba all the offensive weapons to which Kennedy objected and not just the 42 missiles cleared out last weekend.

Washington officials said the bomber issue is of greater concern than Prime Minister Fidel Castro's threat to shoot down U.S. reconnaissance aircraft.

Their confidence apparently rested on a belief the Russians would not support Castro in any military action that was sure to bring U.S. retaliation. It was assumed here that the big surface to air missile bases of which the Soviets set 22 up in Cuba are under Soviet command and are control of Soviet troops.

Authorities said that Castro certainly has the power to fire on and perhaps to knock down some U.S. planes. And there was no denial that if this happened it would bring a rapid increase in tensions in the Cuban crisis and mark the beginning of a dangerous new period.

Whether it would also have the result of causing Khrushchev to look more carefully at his policy on the IL28 jet bombers is a question. Since he has lost Cuba as a major nuclear missile base, authorities here find it hard to believe he would pay much of a price to retain weapons of secondary importance there at the cost of serious trouble with the United States.

Four U.S. Coast Guard planes, a U.S. Navy plane and a U.S. Air Force plane resumed the search for the missing men from the crew of 25. Surface patrols were carried on by the U.S. submarine Torsk and the Coast Guard cutter Mendota.

Seven members of the freighters crew were rescued Thursday from two lifeboats buffeted by gale winds and towering waves.

Two tankers of Liberian registry that took part in the rescue were headed to North American ports. They were the Trinity Navigator, bound for Paulsboro, N.J., and the Virginia, bound for Montreal.

In Ole Miss Case
Two Secret Indictments
Handed Down In Rioting

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — The Lafayette County grand jury, blaming federal marshals for "agitating and provoking violence" during desegregation rioting at the University of Mississippi, has handed down two secret indictments.

No names were released by the grand jury as it acted Friday after studying for a week the Sept. 30 riot that followed the arrival of James H. Meredith — a Negro, on the Ole Miss campus.

However, it lashed out at Chief U.S. Marshal James P. McShane for his order to fire tear gas at demonstrators that night.

"We find that this illegal action on the part of McShane set off the tragic violence which followed," the grand jury report said.

Sheriff Joe Ford of Lafayette County was directed to arrest the two persons and have them in

Castro Gets Soviet Verbal Support

Fears Mount Talks May Be Halted
By Threat To Shoot Down Planes

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A threat by Prime Minister Fidel Castro to shoot down U.S. reconnaissance planes heightened the fears of many delegates today that a shooting incident might torpedo talks to settle the Cuban crisis.

In Washington, U.S. officials were inclined to think that the Russians would not support Castro in any military action risking U.S. retaliation. There was a conviction that anti-aircraft missile batteries in Cuba are manned by Russians not subject to Castro's orders.

Nevertheless, Castro got Soviet verbal support Friday as U.S. Delegate Arthur Dean and Soviet Delegate Valerian A. Zorin clashed on the issue before the U.N. Political Committee.

Zorin called the Cuban leader's warning against U.S. flights "perfectly legitimate."

Dean declared the United States would continue scout missions over Cuba as long as necessary and give its planes protection if need be.

He told the 110-nation committee that Castro's threat carries no weight with the United States. Such flights are essential, Dean said, until Premier Khrushchev carries out his promise of on-site inspection to make sure the Soviet rockets have been pulled out of Cuba.

Dean rapped the Russians for installing missile bases in Cuba while assuring President Kennedy that no offensive weapons were being sent to Castro.

Dean said Khrushchev had been found "with his hand in the Cuban missile pot, or if you will, plot."

Stung by Dean's remarks, Zorin said any attempt by the United States to violate Cuban sovereignty, "cannot but provoke universal condemnation."

Zorin charged that the U.S. flights were unlawful and the United States' decision to continue them caused "deep concern for the peace of the world."

The exchange was triggered by

Cuban Ambassador Carlos Lechuaga, who interrupted the committee's disarmament debate to announce that Castro's warning went into effect "as of today."

Reliable sources said U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson had told Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov of the U.S. determination to continue Cuban surveillance Thursday night during the latest round of crisis bargaining.

U.S. sources said more talks with the Soviet negotiating team were expected, but none was scheduled for the weekend.

In Moscow, the official Soviet military newspaper Red Star declared the Soviet Union was solidly supporting Castro.

Pro-Castro
Group Tied To Sabotage

One Of Those Held
Reported Member
Of Mission To U.N.

NEW YORK (AP)—FBI agents announced today the arrest of three persons in what was termed a pro-Castro Cuban sabotage conspiracy against the United States. A secret cache of weapons and explosives was said to have been seized simultaneously.

One of those arrested was identified as a member of the Cuban mission to the United Nations. Two other members of the mission were named as conspirators, but the FBI said they were not arrested because of diplomatic immunity.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, announcing the action from Washington named those arrested as:

Roberto Santiesteban Casanova, 27, a newly arrived attaché at the Cuban mission to the United Nations, and Antonio Sueiro, 22, and Jose Garcia Orellana, 42, both of New York City.

Other members of the Cuban mission to the United Nations named as involved in the conspiracy are Jose Gomez Abad, 21, and his wife, Elsa, 20. They have not yet been arrested.

A federal complaint filed by the FBI in New York City Friday alleges that they delivered incendiary devices and other explosive materials to Jose Garcia.

Hoover said Roberto Santiesteban had a fully loaded Mauser semi-automatic pistol on his person when he was arrested.

He violently resisted arrest and it was necessary for agents to subdue him. He additionally had secret explosive formulas in his possession which he tried to swallow at the time of apprehension, Hoover said. These were recovered by the FBI.

Gomez and his wife, assigned to the Cuban U.N. mission since last year, are listed as entitled to diplomatic privileges and immunities, the FBI said.

Santiesteban had requested diplomatic status and immunity, but the request was still being processed and had not been granted at the time he was arrested.

Hoover said Santiesteban arrived in New York Oct. 3 aboard the same plane as Cuban President Osvaldo Dorticos.

The announcement said equipment seized by FBI agents included hand grenades, incendiary devices, detonators, and other items generally associated with sabotage and guerrilla warfare. They were cached in a workshop operated by Jose Garcia at 242 W. 27th St., New York City, the FBI said. Antonio Sueiro has claimed to be a part-time employee at this address.

Hoover said that Garcia and Sueiro have extensive backgrounds. (Turn to PLOT, Page 3)

Two Gunmen
Killed During Street Battle

Detective Wounded
In Running Fight
In New York City

NEW YORK (AP)—Two gunmen were killed and a third was wounded critically Friday in an attempt to shoot it out with detectives on a crowded Manhattan street after a 34-cent robbery.

One detective was wounded in the running gun battle and a pedestrian was nicked by a stray bullet when the trio was cornered in the robbery attempt.

The gun battle erupted when the robbers tried to escape with 34 cents in nickels, dimes and pennies and virtually nonnegotiable checks totaling $54.593. The checks were payable to Franklin Simon, a department store chain.

Detectives had tailed the robbers since February and only had observed them as they studied the movements of a bank messenger for the general offices of the firm.

Dead in the streets after the battle were Kenneth Cavanaugh, 33, and Albert Taylor, 48, both of Queens.

Their companion, Patrick Huston, 35, also of Queens, was hospitalized in critical condition with seven bullet wounds in his back, arm, legs and abdomen.

Detective Jeremiah J. Howard, 28, was reported in critical condition with one bullet wound in his abdomen.

The bank messenger, Herman Levine, 50, was shoved back by the gunmen as he started to step off an elevator. They slapped him, pushed him to the floor and handcuffed his hands behind his back.

Levine said one robber kicked him as they left the elevator, but he managed to pull a wire setting off a smoke bomb in the bank deposit bag. The robbers fled out.

Rocket Flight Perfect
Test Brings U.S.
Closer To Moon

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —The United States has taken another stride toward the moon with the third straight successful test launching of the Saturn super-booster.

The monster rocket performed flawlessly Friday on a 4-minute 55-second flight in which the booster's tanks were fully fueled for the first time. As on the two previous shots, only the first stage was tested and its eight engines built up the planned thrust of 1.3 million pounds.

D. Brainerd Holmes, director of manned space flight for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, termed the flight "another step in a sound development program in the conquest of space, aimed at manned lunar landing."

Dr. Werner Von Braun, who heads NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center, told newsmen the flight was perfect and that plans are pushing ahead for the launching of Saturn No. 4 in the spring.

The fourth Saturn will be the last test of the first stage only. One of its engines will be intentionally cut off during flight to determine how well the rocket performs without it.

The Saturn powerplant is designed to shut off flow of fuel to a bad engine and distribute it evenly to the other seven. In this way, the burning time of the seven working engines is increased and theoretically there is no loss of performance.

Saturn No. 5, slated for firing late next year, will be the first to generate full operational thrust of 1.5 million pounds and also the first to fly the second stage.

Von Braun said the second stage, which burns high energy liquid hydrogen fuel, is presently the bottleneck in the Saturn program.

"The problem with the second stage," he said, "is now no longer the liquid hydrogen technology. It is engineering it to fit in with the over-all vehicle."

The former German rocket expert said that starting with flight No. 6 Saturn will carry early models of the Apollo moonship. The 11th Saturn, he said, is the one earmarked to carry the three-man Apollo team into orbit for a two-week stay. This will be late 1964 or early 1965.

By 1966, an advanced Saturn with 7.5 million pounds of thrust is scheduled to whirl an Apollo team into orbit around the moon. Before 1970, the larger Saturn is expected to hurl another Apollo craft into lunar orbit and this time two of the astronauts will drop to the moon's surface in a capsule. After exploring for

Force Indian Units
To Yield Ground In Strategic Sectors

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—The Communist Chinese pressed their counterattack around key defense outposts at Walong, forcing out-numbered Indian troops to yield some ground, the Defense Ministry reported today.

Indian reinforcements were flown into the northeast battle area on commandeered civilian airliners, informed sources said.

"Our troops are offering stout resistance but had to yield after successive attacks by the enemy," said a Defense Ministry spokesman. "Fierce fighting is still going on, according to the last report here, on Saturday morning."

The Walong positions are considered highly important by Indian commanders because a Chinese breakthrough there could mean a Red advance into India's Assam State.

The spokesman said Indian forces repulsed four Chinese attacks around Jang, about 300 miles west of Walong.

Jang is near Towang, another strategic defense point, it lies below the Indian defense line of the 13,756-foot Se Pass.

The Defense Ministry spokesman said the Chinese attacked at Walong in numbers considerably superior to ours after Red artillery laid down artillery and heavy mortar fire.

City Checked
For Slayer Of Newark Man

Suspect Possibly
Had Been At Bus
Terminal 3 Hours

The search for a suspect in the slaying of a Newark man turned to the East Liverpool area as authorities appealed today for help in tracing a man answering the description of the killer.

Sgt. Clyde Mann of the Franklin County sheriff's office, State Highway Patrolman R. R. Beiter and Police Capt. R. H. Pyle asked any person with information to contact authorities at the city police station.

Sgt. Mann said the suspect is about 24 but looks younger and resembles singer Jimmy Boyd. He is about 5-foot-11 with a long, narrow, freckled face and slender build with reddish or sandy hair in a crew-cut style.

The suspect was wearing a gray sweat shirt with a detachable hood with two white bleach spots on the rear, dark pants and black shoes.

Sgt. Mann said police are working on the assumption the suspect, possibly a serviceman, may have been away for a few weeks and has returned home.

The Franklin County officer said the investigation has established the suspect spent about three hours in the city bus station on E. 5th St. on Tuesday and then took a bus to the intersection of Routes 7 and 30 where he got off.

Police also have received information a man answering the description was seen in East Liverpool on Wednesday but the report still hasn't been verified, Sgt. Mann said.

During the investigation, Capt. Pyle learned the man made a pasteboard sign at the bus station, using red cellophane tape to mark "Buffalo" on one sign and "Erie" on the other.

However, the sign was left at the bus station and thrown into the trash. Police recovered the sign and sent it to Columbus for fingerprint examination, Sgt. Mann said.

The bus driver told police when the man got off at the intersection of 7 and 30, he started to walk north on Route 7.

Sgt. Mann said authorities have reason to believe the suspect may have doubled back and headed south.

A trucker told police he dropped off a subject answering the description at the intersection of Routes 39 and 164 near Salineville. The trucker told police he

Grand Jury

Justice Department in Washington announced it hoped to file papers in the criminal contempt cases against Gov. Ross Barnett and Lt. Gov. Paul B. Johnson Jr. shortly after Thanksgiving.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans directed the Justice Department on Thursday to bring the criminal contempt charges. Both Barnett and Johnson have already been found guilty of civil contempt by the court for their parts in blocking Meredith's admission to Ole Miss, but no penalties have been imposed.

Criminal contempt is designed to punish persons for past defiance of court orders, while civil contempt proceedings are intended to bring about future compliance.

Edwin Guthman, Justice Department attorneys and the court would decide whether a jury or judges will hear the contempt charges.

At the same news conference, Guthman distributed a statement from Atty. Gen. Kennedy, in which he said: "I said shortly after the riot that Mr. McShane and the marshals acted with great bravery and restraint, and investigations since then by the FBI and reports by newsmen more than sustain that position."

A number of marshals received critical injuries in the rioting, which took two lives. But the grand jury said there was no evidence to show who fired the fatal shots at Paul Guihard, a French newsman, and Walter Ray Gunter, an Oxford juke box repairman.

Assault

She testified she and Kent, a customer, were dancing when he whirled her through the doorway into the kitchen and forced her onto the floor.

She said he threatened her with the short, curved blade of a linoleum knife which he drew from his hip pocket.

In his statement to the court, Kent said he danced with the waitress "six or seven times" to music from the juke box.

After the couple came out of the kitchen, another customer entered "and she started to yell she had been raped," Kent said.

The only other defense witness was Kent's nephew, Charles Wayne Gunn, 18, who told of accompanying the defendant to the restaurant after the pair finished work Thursday night.

He told of consuming a bottle of soft drink and a sandwich. He said he left the spaghetti house at 9, about 45 minutes before the alleged incident. Kent remained, he said.

Queried by Asst. Solicitor Richard J. Clark, Gunn said he knew nothing of the alleged encounter between Kent and the woman.

Judge Chertoff explained to Kent the court's sole function in a preliminary hearing is to determine if crime has been committed and if there is reasonable and probable cause to hold you to the Grand Jury.

He said his action in holding Kent for court was "based on the testimony of the complaining witness."

Queried by the court, Kent said he is married and the father of an eight-month-old baby. Shortly after the hearing, he was taken to County Jail in default of the bond.

The prosecution's side of the case was presented yesterday morning. The hearing then was continued until 2:30 p.m. yesterday to allow Gunn to appear for the defense.

side the building in a billowing green smoke cloud.

Ten staked-out detectives intercepted them as they attempted to drive off in a car.

A panel truck with two detectives blocked their way and four squad cars pulled in behind and beside them. The cornered trio leaped out and opened fire, police said.

In the middle of the gun battle, Thomas Leahy, 59, of Manhattan, stepped out of a diner carrying a container of tea. "My hat flew off all of a sudden," said Leahy. His head had been creased by a stray bullet.

Police reported today the arrest of William (Dummy) Taylor, 73, who they said is the father of the slain Albert Taylor and the grandfather of the other dead gunman, Cavanaugh.

The elder Taylor was charged with conspiracy in the robbery. Police said he had been seen near the scene of the robbery while it was being planned. They quoted him as saying he did not take part in the actual robbery attempt because "I wasn't feeling too good yesterday."

He was seized at his Long Island home at Copiague, Friday night, police said.

of participation in pro-Castro organizations in New York City.

Hoover said Santiesteban, Garcia and Suiro were charged with conspiracy to violate a federal statute which prohibits destruction of national defense materials or utility installation during peacetime; and another which prohibits persons other than diplomatic or consular officers or attaches from acting as agents of a foreign government without prior notification to the secretary of state.

Each of the charges carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in jail. A $10,000 fine also can be imposed on the first charge, and a $5,000 fine on the second.

The federal complaint filed Friday charges that the arrested men conspired to gather information concerning United States military installations, as well as to "obtain and possess incendiary devices and other explosive materials for the purpose of injuring and destroying national defense materials, premises and utilities" in New York.

2 Killed And 5 Hurt As Ohio Cars Collide

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Two persons were killed and five injured in an auto collision on U. S. 40 in suburban Whitehall Friday night.

The accident occurred about 500 feet from the spot where three persons were killed in a crash three weeks ago.

Killed Friday night were: William I. Haynes, 33, of Rt. 1, Hebron.

A girl identified as his daughter, age about 8 to 10.

Haynes' widow, Ruby, about 30, was reported in serious condition in St. Anthony Hospital. Three other passengers in the Haynes car also were injured severely: Erma Howell, 34, of Pataskala, in serious condition in St. Anthony, and her daughters, Debbie Howell, 6, critical in Children's Hospital, and Linda, six months, fair condition in Children's.

The other injured person was the driver of the other car, Ronald A. Briggs, 35, of Reynoldsburg. He was in fair condition.

Police said Briggs reportedly attempted to pass an auto but skidded on wet pavement across the center line and into the oncoming car driven by Haynes. All the passengers in the Haynes car were thrown out as the vehicle was demolished.

Mason's wallet was found Wednesday in a Columbus grill and about $100 was reported missing, police said.

His car stood at the truck stop for a couple of days. William Bates, owner of the service station, said it wasn't reported to authorities because truckers often left their cars in the parking area while on trips.

Officials of the City Box Factory of Akron have indicated interest in setting up an operation here, he said, and a questionnaire has been given sawmill operators to determine if sufficient supplies of wood are available.

Jack Taylor, president of the firm, recently met with area operators, and said plans were being weighed for a plant on the old pottery site property owned by Fred Polen. Earlier this year, Council conferred with a representative of a wood fabricating concern about a plant at the site, but nothing came of it.

Prodigious Waste Of Manpower

Even those quickest to shovel dirt into Richard M. Nixon's political grave have had second thoughts about on aspect of the public career he says is over.

No top-ranking public figure of his era earned a higher rating for the careful preparation known as "homework." As representative, senator and vice president, Mr. Nixon always prepared himself with a thoroughness that astonished his associates.

One of the stories growing out of his successful mediation of the 1959 steel strike during a night-long meeting in his home had negotiators yielding to the extraordinary grasp of their problems by an outsider. Whatever he undertook in his public career was done with attention to detail and clarity of purpose that marked Mr. Nixon as the highest type of public servant.

IT WAS ONLY in politics that he faltered—not in the details of organization but in the political image that ultimately becomes more real to the public than reality. Mr. Nixon's image was that of ruthless determination to win.

One of the tantalizing ironies of his almost successful 1960 campaign was his attempt to live down the political image that had served him well in the past. He became conciliatory. His campaign lacked the slambang trademark he had made famous. It seemed scattered and confused.

No one doubts, not even his critics, that Mr. Nixon is competent to tackle any job in the federal government. His political prospect is the only thing changed by his defeat in California. Yet this change may well have terminated his public career.

DEFEATED Democrats are looking forward to safe refuge in federal appointments. But there is no refuge for losing candidates of the party out of power.

They have no choice but to go back to their law practices and make so much money they can forget the hurt of being defeated.

Every time it happens, the country loses another group of trained officials, including those who have earned respect for extraordinary competence. It is a prodigious waste of manpower in a country that needs trained public officials even more than it needs nuclear physicists.

Clean Sweep In Columbus

Gov.-elect James A. Rhodes is experiencing his first big postelection headache in deciding who will help him steer the ship of state for the next four years.

Although it's held up as one of the shining prizes of the governorship, the power to dispense patronage can be one of the most soul-jarring duties of high public office.

You don't just reach blindly into the heap of applicants and come up with right people for key jobs. It isn't that simple.

First of all, Mr. Rhodes will want to be reasonably certain his appointees will be loyal members of the team. That seems to give Republicans the inside track for top jobs, even though there is no rule barring members of the opposite party, some capable Democrats will be buried in the discard pile.

The new governor will want his cabinet members to be experts in their fields. Experts willing to stake their future on little more than the tenuous guarantee of a four-year term aren't easy to find.

Mr. Rhodes will step on some toes, no matter how meticulous he is in spreading patronage. The big rewards traditionally go to those who worked hardest for the cause. But some hard workers will be left out. There aren't enough jobs to go around.

He has avoided saying how completely he'll flush out the appointees of Gov. Michael V. DiSalle. He's saying only that efficiency will be the prime consideration.

Since he spent a good share of his campaign roasting the current administration for inefficiency, a pretty clean sweep is indicated.

Eighty-eight county chairmen representing thousands of the party's faithful are lining up outside your door with their hands out, Mr. Rhodes. Good luck. We don't envy you.

The Bear And The Dragon

Khrushchev's stock is slipping. Watch it if he's goaded into an open clash with Red China's Mao-tse-tung.

At first blush, the widening rift between the communist regimes looks like an international tension-buster.

Don't be misled.

The Soviet Union and Red Chinese bullies have one strong bond—their goal of eventual domination of the United States and the rest of the free world with communism. Their quarrel is over how to achieve it.

Recent developments in India and Cuba have added fuel to the smoldering dispute between the Bear and the Dragon. It's important that we don't let the smoke get in our eyes and we understand what a flash fire could produce.

A-Junketing They Will Go

Don't be unduly shocked if one day soon you read that well-traveled U.S. representatives and senators are holding a special, but mighty informal, session on Paris night life.

That's not as far-fetched as it sounds. It was a long, arduous campaign, and now is the time for junketing. And junketing the congressmen are, to lands distant and delightful.

There is, we're led to believe, a passel of work to be done abroad pertaining to congressional committee assignments. It would be out of the question to let our foreign embassy people attend to such business.

YOU MIGHT question the need of two dozen legislators heading for Paris at the same time. We haven't heard anything about a request for foreign aid from that quarter. Besides, New York's Rep. Adam Clayton Powell already has done a pretty complete job of investigating Paris.

Unworthy Of Us

While the political feathers are still fluttering after another frantic stirring, someone needs to say something about a matter that needs more attention.

Politics and politicians need upgrading. They are lagging behind the people.

Representative democracy is in danger of being betrayed by shoddy practices.

In a country that boasts about the way it keeps demanding something better politics keeps getting worse.

What the people are confronted with wasn't even good enough for their grandfathers.

If politics had been as bad in grandfather's time as it is now, the United States wouldn't have survived.

We need to quit voting for images and demand the real thing.

We need to swear off being led down the garden path by people we wouldn't trust to sell us a used car.

When politicians treat us as if they thought we were rabble we should reduce them to rabble.

Something is wrong when political contests seem to be a tussle between crooks, with victory going to the crook who has done the best job of covering his tracks.

Something has turned sour in the republic when candidates for high public office find nothing worthwhile to talk about but the trivia of their squirming and wriggling to belly up to the trough.

The prospect for popular sovereignty is bleak when political campaigns are operated like a contest between rattle-brained kids seeing which one can scare the chickens into the noisier panic.

Government should not be a process of finding the least common denominator; it should be a quest for the greatest good.

Backsets driving in public affairs is as unadmirable as it is in operating a car.

Patriots should give sober second thought to the implications of defeat for first-rate citizens who run against shopworn political hacks and get their ears pinned back.

There is something to worry about when nonentities with well-publicized names crawl out of the woodwork and pull votes as if they had a right to popular support.

The Union is coming apart at the seams when callow "southern gemmum" in a state university put on Confederate uniforms and go gunning for damyankees as if nothing had been settled by the Civil War.

Pride of country is falling into tatters when it is impossible to find a single utterance worthy of a statesman in a five-pound bundle of political manuscripts.

May Have To Be A Shotgun Affair

Reuther May Run Against Romney

By Victor Riesel

Fiery Walter Reuther, the red-head whom too many experts are counting out too soon, may yet surprise them all by dramatically running against George Romney for governor of Michigan in '64.

Those who know him and have spent some time with him these last few weeks are not writing his political obituary. A small informed group, one of whom holds one of the nation's highest posts, believes that Reuther is temperamentally incapable of sitting still or being content "merely" with the leadership of a powerful union, even if it is the United Auto Workers.

Therefore they believe that Walter Reuther will swing into politics—personally and directly, not just through labor's machinery. Only one labor leader has attempted this during the past 50 years. And even he did not choose to run for office personally.

He is old King Coal, John Llewellyn Lewis. He was all-powerful in the late '30s.

HIS LEGIONS were rolling across the iron, steel and coal fields. At this point he made his lieutenant, now United Mine Workers President, Thomas Kennedy, lieutenant governor of Pennsylvania. Then Lewis put Mr. Kennedy into the Democratic primary for governor. They lost.

Some insiders believe Reuther will have the courage to move into Michigan politics. Otherwise the professionals say he has "nowhere to go." And he does not stand still.

Few realize that for some time now he has created a crisis a year inside the AFL-CIO in his efforts to become president of the strong 12½ million-member merged labor movement.

In the words of one who took a leading role in making peace between labor president George Meany and Reuther over the Veterans' Day weekend: "Reuther is impatient. He wants to be president of the AFL-CIO. If he can't be president he at least wants to be copresident. So he continually tests Meany for some weakness or a deal which would in effect make him a copresident with freedom of action."

THE FIRST of Reuther's crises came in 1950 when he split with Meany on the wisdom of sitting down with Chairman Khrushchev and trying to outpoint the Russian at a private dinner in San Francisco during the AFL-CIO convention there.

Crisis No. 2 came the next year, in '60, when Reuther bucked John Kennedy's nomination right up to the count. The auto chief was for Adlai Stevenson. And after the count at the Los Angeles Democratic Convention, Reuther was set to blast Lyndon Johnson.

Meany had been officially neutral, but behind the scenes he was for John Kennedy and went along with Johnson at the request of the Kennedys.

The third crisis came at the 1961 AFL-CIO convention in Bal Harbour, Fla. Again there were reports that Reuther would pull out. Finally an all-night session resulted in a peace formula to ease the battle between Reuther's industrial unions and the construction crafts.

THE FOURTH CRISIS came this last week over the naming of an AFL-CIO vice president. Reuther, of course, wanted Ralph Helstein, leader of the Packinghouse Workers, and Meany was for Eugene Frazier, Negro leader of the Transport Service Employees.

Reuther called all the old CIO unions to a closed caucus in the Hotel Statler at Washington, on the night of Sunday Nov. 11. Many thought he would call on them to walk out with him and his union. If he had quit the AFL-CIO, he would have taken almost two million members—Joe Curran's National Maritime Union, Jim Carey's International Union of Electrical Workers and, of course, the Packinghouse Workers.

This revelation has been gleaned from a recent document prepared by an embassy with direct diplomatic pipelines into Havana.

The latest series of measures suggest that the Cuban leadership, with its control of trade unions firmly established, has decided it is now in a position to bear down upon the workers without fear of reprisals.

These measures to discipline labor and increase state control over the workers, were quietly instituted by the Cuban Labor Ministry on Aug. 29, 1962, and include the following:

1. An emulation campaign under which workers have to compete with each other.

2. Governmental direction of labor.

3. A "labor book" to be carried by every worker on which pensions are based according to comments written in by employers.

4. Punishments, including loss of wages and holidays, for minor absenteeism.

5. A complete wage-freeze.

6. A "norm" system under which workers failing to reach set targets will suffer a wage deduction.

Some Cuba trade union leaders are "highly concerned" about the trend of the regime to control the unions and have even been vociferous about it.

For example, Alfred Rancano, Secretary General of the Restaurant Workers' Union, has publicly criticized "certain leaders of the labor union segments who have become appendices of the revolutionary administration instead of busy themselves with their labor union responsibilities."

Gulf Seen Between Court Ruling, People

The use of troops at the University of Mississippi has cost the federal government more than $2 million. This figure has just been revealed by the general Accounting Office in a communication to Sen. A. Willis Robertson, D-Va., who is chairman of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee. The figure covers only the extra cost of transportation and other expenses that would not otherwise have been incurred for the federal troops, and includes all costs resulting from the calling of the National Guard into federal service. It does not take into account as yet any of the expenses of the U.S. marshals, the FBI and the divisions of the Department of Justice. The expenses have been tabulated up to Nov. 1.

The total expense, including the mobilization of 34,000 troops in Mississippi and adjacent states, may eventually reach at least $4 million, according to unofficial estimates. There are federal troops as well as U.S. marshals still on duty in the vicinity of the University of Mississippi.

Just what legal function these troops are performing today is not clear. The court order has been complied with, inasmuch as James Meredith has been enrolled as a student in the university. It now is the obligation of the State of Mississippi and of the local authorities to maintain order.

There is no federal law or court decision which gives the president the right to use the armed services merely to await a contingency in which a state may fail or be unable to protect the residents of a state against violence.

IF EVERY RIOT or disturbance grows out of a debate or dispute over a federal court decision were to be policed by the federal government, the states would be deprived of their right to do their own policing. Indeed, there is a spirited controversy as to whether the Mississippi State Police who were on duty at the time of the riot on the university campus were actually prevented from maintaining order by the action of the armed U.S. marshals, who were later joined by federal troops.

This probably will be argued out someday when the State of Mississippi files in court its claim for $340,000 property damage sustained by the university.

The contention will be made by the state that the use of federal troops to put down a local riot was a violation of the Constitution and was not sanctioned by any law of Congress or by any court decision.

In fact, the troops and armed marshals were ordered into action before the full Supreme Court of the United States had passed upon an appeal from a U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals decision that Meredith must be admitted to the university.

A citizen has the right to refuse to comply with a court order or decision and to take the risk of a conviction for contempt and then imprisonment. But he also has the right to petition for an appeal all the way up to the Supreme Court of the United States.

IT OFTEN IS contended that Supreme Court decisions are "the law of the land," but the decisions of the highest federal court actually are only "the law of the case."

Many cases differ from one another in facts and circumstances. John C. Satterfield, who served as president of the American Bar Association until last summer, dwelt on this very point in a speech before the national convention of the American Legion shortly after the Mississippi incident.

He is one of the lawyers recently called in by the State of Mississippi. He said:

"There is one legal fallacy against which we should be on guard when we consider others with whom we may disagree. That is the fallacy widely disseminated during the past few years that a decision of a court is 'the law of the land.'"

"I have the greatest respect for our courts — the Supreme Court of the United States and our federal and state courts — and yet court decisions are not, never have been and never will be 'the law of the land.'"

"Court decisions are 'the law of the case.' Nevertheless, on every hand you hear the saying that a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States is 'the law of the land' and must be obeyed by everyone, whether he or she was a party to a particular case or not."

"Courts are not governed by precedents and desires. They are governed by facts which appear in the records. Other cases decided upon other records between other parties and under different circumstances are only persuasive precedents until they are overruled. Until overruled, they may be differentiated by differing facts and differing elements."

FROM THE OTHER side of the fence — a spokesman for the U.S. Department of Justice — comes a comment that indicates that even a law cannot accomplish very much in the face of the adverse sentiment of a community.

Deputy Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach made a speech last Sunday before the first Human Rights College Conference for the students of New York City, held at Cooper Union.

He had dealt with the Mississippi controversy at firsthand for the Department of Justice. He said in his speech:

"I think we have to reckon with the fact that the gulf exists because the Supreme Court decision cannot remake educational systems or the habits of a community all at once. The court doesn't run the schools. It can't. The court can't even formulate specific plans for gradually bringing about integration in a community."

"Now, the difficulty here is that the law loses its power when there's too wide a gulf between the result which the law may reach and widespread social attitudes."

Letter To The Editor

EDITOR OF THE REVIEW:

This relates to the editorial entitled "Truck Drivers Need Help" which appeared in The Review. It relates to the accident that took the lives of six school-teachers on the Willow Freeway.

I would like to state a few incidents that took place with me while driving heavy equipment over the road for 22 years.

I was en route from East Palestine to Buffalo, N. Y., on a scheduled freight run. As I had encountered heavy fog during the night and quite a lot of slippery pavement, which increased my stopping distance greatly, my run took longer than under ordinary circumstances.

At Fredonia, N. Y., which is one hour and 15 minutes out of Buffalo, I was so tired and fatigued from the fog that I called my dispatcher and told him I had to get an hour's rest and then I would complete my run. He refused to grant me this time.

However, I did take an hour's nap, then went on into Buffalo without any trouble. This made me an hour late on my schedule. I marked in my log book the words of the dispatcher. Two days later I was fired.

I also refused to sneak around scales to avoid being fined for overloads.

The companies as well as the drivers are responsible for these killings.

You tell a company that you refuse to drive over the 10-hour period when the run takes as high as 20 to 30 hours and see how long you will last.

I could tell hundreds of violations that were forced on drivers who were so tired they could not sit up let alone safely drive a gross weight of 30 tons.

I went to the authorities and they did nothing. This is why we read news such as six teachers killed by head-on truck collisions.

Dump Truck To Be Bought By Township

Purchase of a 1963 International dump truck at a total cost of $7,142 was approved by the Liverpool Township trustees at a meeting Friday night at City Hall.

The truck will be obtained this week from the O. S. Hill Co. in East End. The trustees authorized Simon C. Hall, clerk, to make a $1,000 down payment on the vehicle. The firm allowed $2,142 trade-in for an old truck.

The trustees will obtain two $2,000 notes, one to be retired in one year and the other in two years.

The trustees received the official report on the township fire levy showing that 882 voted for the levy while 199 opposed it.

A deed was received from the West fire department for a strip of ground along the LaCroft fire station to be used for construction of hose drying racks. The ground was owned by the firemen. The strip donated is 6 feet 8 inches wide by 100 feet long.

The trustees voted to continue purchasing gasoline from the Humble Oil Co. The firm bid 15.09 cents per gallon, plus sales tax, for a total of 22.09 cents. Bids were received earlier from Humble, the Standard Oil Co. and Hays Oil Co. All three bids were the same. As the township had been doing business with Humble, the trustees voted to continue doing so.

Hall was directed to purchase a 55-gallon drum of anti-freeze solution from Humble at a cost of $1.25 per gallon.

A complaint was received from a Dewey Ave. resident that a new water line installed by the trustees had not been covered.

A road crew had damaged the property-owners' line while cleaning a ditch. The trustees had a new line installed to the meter, but did not cover the line on the owner's property. The trustees will investigate.

Next meeting is Nov. 30.

Youth Pleads Guilty In Death Of Stepson

CLEVELAND (AP) — Against the advice of his lawyer, Raymond D. Thompkins, 19, interrupted his second-degree murder trial Friday and pleaded guilty to a first-degree manslaughter.

He was on trial before a jury in Common Pleas Judge Roy F. McMahon's court for the June 27 death of his 3-year-old stepson, Jerome. The prosecution presented medical witnesses who said the child had been squeezed to death.

Thompson faces 1-20 years in prison.

Two-Man Flight In Space Delayed

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The first two-man U.S. space flight has been delayed at least three months and most likely will not be made before 1964.

"We might even have further slips," a U.S. space agency official said Friday at the American Rocket Society convention.

Robert R. Gilruth, director of the agency's Manned Space Craft Center at Houston, Tex., said the delay was not due to a shortage of funds for the two-man Gemini astronaut program. It just takes time "to do this very complicated job," he said.

In other convention developments, Air Force Secretary Eugene M. Zuckert announced the start of a billion-dollar program under which the Titan III super rocket will be developed, and Dr. Hugh L. Dryden, deputy administrator of the space agency, said construction of huge orbiting space stations may be the nation's next large manned space project.

Gilruth declined to specify what technical problems have delayed the Gemini program. But he said the first launching of an unmanned Gemini capsule "has slipped from the third quarter to the fourth quarter of 1963."

"There is virtually no possibility of a manned flight before 1964," he said.

Gilruth came here to receive the Robert H. Goddard Memorial Award. The award, highest honor bestowed by the rocket society, is named for the father of American rocketry and is given each year for eminence in the field of rocket engineering and space flight.

Zuckert said contracts for the Titan III program have either been signed or are being negotiated. Actual work will start Dec. 1, he said.

The Titan III will be a three-stage rocket employing liquid and solid fuels. The Air Force and space agency expect the rocket to be a workhorse in future satellite and space probe missions.

The Titan III's first job will be to boost the X20 Dyna-Soar aerospace vehicle into orbit for the Air Force. Titan III will have a thrust of 2.5 million pounds and will stand 151 feet high when topped by the Dyna-Soar vehicle.

Dr. Dryden told the convention he believes construction of space stations will take precedence over extensive exploitation of the moon.

But, he said, "this might change if the early lunar exploration returned surprises in the form of natural resources of use on earth."

Subdividing Code Delayed At Ohioville

Ohioville Borough Council delayed action on a proposed ordinance covering the subdividing and development of land after strong objections were voiced by two representatives at a special meeting Thursday night.

Wilbert Bassinger, representing Midland Enterprises, developer of Meadowbrook Estates, and Daniel Borato, a local builder and contractor, objected to the road requirements contained in the ordinance.

They said the road specifications would discourage development of land, arguing that generally only six inches of slag is required for the road base. The proposed ordinance provides for an eight-inch slag base and two inches of fine slag on top.

The objections were received at a public hearing after the ordinance had been presented for second reading by Daniel B. Aker, borough engineer. The proposed ordinance will be aired again at the meeting Dec. 6.

Council authorized purchase of a hydraulic cinder spreader for the borough truck from the Sutto Equipment Distributors of Renfrew at a cost of $700. Delivery is expected in two or three weeks.

Mayor Elmer R. Gifford stressed the need for a dog law enforcement officer. Applications for the post are being taken by Mrs. Earl Carroll, Council secretary.

Council also agreed to act as sponsor for the Fairview Canteen Board until arrangements for another sponsor can be made. George Daniels Jr., president, presided.

Sedan Damaged As Truck Drifts

A New Cumberland woman's 1959 four-door sedan was damaged by a drifting pickup truck in a mishap Friday at 1:23 p.m. at E. 3rd St. and Broadway, police said.

Emily Cullen Fields, 37, told Patrolman Charles A. Winters she was turning off E. 3rd St. onto Broadway when a pickup truck which had been halted ahead of her drifted backward and hit the hood and right front fender of the auto.

The unidentified truck driver left the scene before his name was obtained, police said. He may have been unaware the backing truck had hit the auto, officers said. The woman driver furnished police with the license number of the truck.

Another mishap Friday at 1 p.m. on Market St. involved a parked 1959 sedan owned by Russell W. Gorby, 1018 Pan Ave., Chester, and a 1952 model auto driven by Henry Greenwood, 75, of 708 Bradshaw Ave., officers said. The right front fender and tail lamp were damaged on the Gorby auto, police said.

Heck With Cab Fare, He Wanted His Candy

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Brad Schnee of Des Moines spent a weekend with his grandmother, Mrs. Clema I. Junkin of Des Moines, and she put him in a taxi for the seven-mile trip home.

About halfway home, the 8-year-old told the driver he had forgotten something very important — he wouldn't say what — and had to return to his grandmother's.

So, back went the cab, the meter ticking. Brad ran into his grandmother's house on his return there — to retrieve a 5-cent candy bar he had left in the refrigerator.

Board To Air Budget

Haiti Ousts Bishop, Priests For Battle Against Voodoo

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—The Negro Republic of Haiti, in a renewal of a feud with the Church, accused a Roman Catholic bishop Friday of crusading against voodoo and ordered him and three priests deported.

The Haitian government also charged that the 60-year-old French-born bishop, the Most Rev. Paul Robert, had conducted a defamation campaign against strongman President Francois Duvalier in 1957, when Duvalier won reelection to a second term. The bishop was called "an enemy of the government."

The voodoo charges dated back to 1941.

Bishop Robert and the priests were to fly to New York today via Miami, Fla. The bishop was to go on to Rome to report to the Vatican.

The priests, also French-born, were identified only as Robin, George Martin and Salius.

The expulsions brought to 12 the number of Catholic clergymen ordered out of Haiti in the last two years by Duvalier.

The president of the French-speaking nation was excommunicated in January 1961 for his role in expelling other high-ranking clergy on charges of allegedly conspiring with Communists. Vatican sources at that time said the clergy resisted the government's attempt to impose the voodoo tradition on Catholicism.

Duvalier regards primitive religions with more than average interest.

The Haitian government, unsuccessful in efforts to have the Vatican recall Bishop Robert from his diocese at Gonaives, removed him to a home for aged priests in the capital city of Port-au-Prince in February 1961.

The bishop, in Haiti for 39 years, and other clerics got a few Haitians in 1941 to take anti-substitution oaths and destroy their voodoo temples and charms. The government cracked down on the church effort.

Voodooism, introduced into the Caribbean and the southern United States by African slaves, relies largely on sorcery and the use of charms. Rites at one time involved the sacrifice of humans. The primitive religion retains its strongest hold in Haiti.

Conferees Had Rocky Path To Compromise

SOMERSET, Ky. (AP) — The devil was jumping from hilltop to hilltop, scattering boulders to make things hard for farmers. His apron string broke, spilling all the rocks into the South Fork of the Cumberland River and giving the name of Devil's Jump, according to Kentucky legend.

House-Senate conferees found a rocky path to compromise on the Omnibus Water Projects appropriations bill before eliminating a proposed dam at Devil's Jump on the final day of the 87th Congress.

Ohio Escapee Seized By FBI On West Coast

Indiana Mayor Is Charged With Taking $100,000

HAMMOND, Ind. (AP) — An Ohio businessman testified Friday that the way was cleared for construction of the Indiana Toll Road across Lake County by under-the-table payments of more than $100,000 to Mayor George Chacharis of Gary, Ind.

Chacharis is on trial in U. S. District Court on a charge of income tax evasion. The testimony came from Robert Altreuter of Columbus, Ohio, former project manager for the Union Building and Construction Corp. of Passaic, N. J.

The trial was in recess today. Altreuter testified Chacharis himself picked up the checks, which were made out to various firms and individuals for "services rendered."

The witness said Chacharis and Harold A. Zweig, Gary city engineer, told him in September 1955, it would cost 5 cents a cubic yard to obtain permits to bring in sand for highway fills.

"I said to Chacharis that we were talking about an awful lot of money," Altreuter said. "It was incomprehensible to me how it could be transferred. Chacharis said it was not a holdup. He was going to have companies and individuals bill us for services."

He identified 20 checks which he said were given to Chacharis in the alleged deal in 1955 and 1956, when Chacharis was Gary city comptroller. They totaled $100,300.

Fined $15 and costs, with $10 suspended, for speeding were John Koffel, 39, of Lisbon, Glen Hawkins, 45, of New Waterford, Tyrone George Mort, 19, of East Liverpool R. D., and Keith Berger, 18, of Negley R. D.

Raymond Wooten, 19, of 837 W. 8th St., and Lloyd A. Richards of Lisbon were fined $10 and costs for speeding.

Donald Billington, 40, of East Liverpool R. D. was fined $5 and costs for driving left of center, and Carrie Ruth, 46, of 835 W. 8th St. and Ralph Dawson, 19, of Lisbon R. D. were fined $5 and costs each for crossing a yellow line.

Lloyd Richards, 20, of Lisbon was fined $20 and costs for lack of a driver's license and $10 for failure to register his vehicle.

Among those forfeiting bonds was Clarence Kannal, 19, of New Waterford R. D., cited for speeding.

Carrie Nation, mother of the Prohibition movement, was born in Kentucky, the state that produces 80 per cent of the world's bourbon whiskey.

Train Stops 50 Feet From Wrong-Way Car

CLEVELAND (AP) — Thinking she was turning into a driveway, a young woman drove her car onto the Nickel Plate Railroad tracks in the path of a train in Lakewood Friday night.

She lived to tell about it. Miss Ruth Ann Parobek, 22, told police she inadvertently turned onto the railroad tracks and got stuck.

The engineer spotted the car's headlights and brought the train to a stop just 50 feet from the car.

Philip, 11, and Timothy, 5, were bitten by the dog, but Kim, 5, was not but he is also receiving the shots since he had mosquito bites on his body and was exposed to possible infection from the dog.

Fourteen shots are required and the boys have seven more to go, Mrs. Hickman said.

The Hickmans, who have been in Colombia for two years, will remain here until summer. Hickman is director of a boys' school in the South American Country.

The Hickmans were due for a furlough at the end of November but on the advice of North American missionary doctors, were told to fly home immediately to begin the shots here.

Skill, Not Clock, Guides Schedules At Euclid School

CLEVELAND (AP) — A group of Ohio educators observed Friday how classes at Euclid Central Junior High School are being scheduled according to the ability of pupils and not by the clock.

A demonstration of the revolutionary program was given for a group attending the Ohio Education Association's conference on instruction here.

The Euclid plan works this way:

A boy who may be interested in algebra and is good at it attends the class for only 20 minutes instead of the full 60-minute period. If the same boy is taking a college preparatory course, he may not have time for art in his regular schedule, but under the flexible scheduling plan he could spend the remaining 40 minutes in an art class.

Students are tested before classes begin to determine how well they can do in each class. They have IBM schedule cards and know where they should be at all times.

Tax Data Shows Continued Gains In Sales Of Cars

Columbiana County auto sales are continuing to hold levels well ahead of 1961, according to sales tax data issued today at Columbus by State Treasurer Joseph T. Ferguson.

The county's tax collections on car sales totaled $14,972 in the week ending Nov. 10, an increase of $5,091 from the $9,881 shown in the same week of 1961.

The collections stand at $219,542 for the fiscal year that started July 1, an increase of $43,265 from the $176,277 shown at the same time in the preceding fiscal year.

Sales taxes on other commodities total $414,900 since the start of the fiscal year, an increase of $7,481 from the $407,428 shown at the same time in the preceding fiscal year.

Because of erratic reporting, figures on weekly collections on other commodities, compared with 1961, no longer are a reliable barometer. The treasurer reported $8,502 collected in the week ending Nov. 10, against $19,518 in the same week of 1961. A change in the collection system that started Jan. 1 makes a comparison impossible between similar weeks of 1962 and 1961.

Alliance Uses Long Runs To Top ELHS In Mud, 32-0

Grimes Scores 2, Races 95 Yds.; Potters End With 3-7 Again

By BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

The 17th East Liverpool-Alliance grid contest started with a bang and ended with a bang, with the final result a 32-0 victory for the Aviators, rated the 10th best football squad in Ohio.

A crowd of some 3,000 watched the curtain go down on the 1962 football season at rain-soaked Patterson Field Friday night. A light rain fell throughout the game on a field already slippery from an all-day drenching.

The muddy going didn't seem to hamper the speedy backs from Alliance, however, as Coach Mel Knowlton's gang rolled up their eighth victory of the season. Alliance lost two and tied one.

For the second straight season, Coach Bob Hedmond's Potters posted a 3-7 record. The Blue and White was shut out three times during the campaign.

HARDLY had the crowd settled in its seats until Alliance had posted six points on the scoreboard. The Aviators' great back Larry Grimes, 165 pounds of light-

Alliance had a net of 208 yards rushing and that's not counting punt and kickoff returns or yardage made on pass interceptions. The Aviators picked off three Baker passes.

EVEN with the interceptions, the forward pass was East Liverpool's best weapon as Baker's tosses to Tom Kraft, Randy Stover and one to Bill Hall picked up more yardage through the air than in any other game this season.

Even though the field was muddy and it was not the best night for passing, the Potters threw 23 times and completed nine for 113 yards.

The slippery ball resulted in four fumbles by the Potters and three by Alliance.

East Liverpool threatened twice. Once was the result of a fumble line by the Potters' outstanding recovered on the Alliance 23-yard linebacker Scotty Musuraca, who played another bang up game defensively.

The recovery was made in the second quarter with Alliance leading 12-0. A touchdown would have put the Potters right back in the game but after a Baker-to-Hall pass netted five yards the ELHS offense stalled.

THE ONLY other threat came in the last few minutes of the game when "Bolton" Bob Bowyer intercepted a Jim Dawson pass and returned it to the Potter 33.

East Liverpool began a march started by a 22-yard pass from Baker to Stover. Baker and Kraft hooked up for an 11-yard gain through the air, then teamed for a 15-yard pass play that carried to the Alliance 14-yard line.

After two passes failed, four seconds showed on the clock when the last play of the game started and Baker's pass wound up in the arms of Grimes. Not only did it kill the scoring threat by the locals but resulted in another touchdown for the Aviators as Grimes showed his heels to the Potters in racing almost the length of Patterson Field.

The other highlight for East Liverpool were the booming punts which came off the foot of Dave Oliver. On two occasions Oliver sent punts far over the head of the Alliance safety man. His longest of the night was measured at 56 yards, with others of 52 and 39.

Eleven Potters played their final high school football game Friday night.

Chamberlain Nets 73 In Warriors' Victory

By The Associated Press
It doesn't seem possible, but San Francisco's Wilt Chamberlain just keeps on getting better in the National Basketball Association.

The Big Dipper shoved in 73 points in the Warriors' 127-111 victory over New York Friday night, setting a Madison Square Garden scoring record.

And, while the output wasn't close to his league record high of 100, it did push his average for the season to a staggering 53.5 points a game.

Syracuse out-lasted Boston 113-105 and replaced the Celtics atop the Eastern Division standings while Cincinnati beat St. Louis, the Western leaders, 120-111 in the other NBA games.

Syracuse played a 14-game football schedule in 1962.

ning, took the opening kickoff on his 23-yard line and ran up to the Alliance 45, but was hit and fumbled.

The ball squirted directly back and bounced up into the arms of the Aviators' leading scorer and ground gainer — Chet (the Jet) Bryant. The 175-pound halfback scooped the ball up on his 35 and was off to the races on a 65-yard touchdown run.

Then with only four seconds remaining on the clock, the last play of the game saw Potter quarterback Chuck Baker toss a pass to his right only to have it intercepted by Grimes, who made a nifty catch off his shoetops on the Alliance five and race 95 yards for the final touchdown which brought the score to 32-0.

LAST NIGHT's final count was the same score recorded by Niles in the opener this season.

In between the two long runs, Alliance scored three touchdowns. Win Young, another swift-moving back, took a punt and went 62 yards for a TD before the first quarter ended. Grimes tallied another touchdown on a 10-yard jaunt on a counter play in the second period and John Blaser went 13 yards for a six-pointer in the third frame.

After the contest, Hedmond standing in the Potter dressing room surrounded by mud-covered gridders, could only repeat what he said several days ago, "The long runs hurt us."

In the Alliance dressing room, Mel Knowlton, the successful Aviator mentor, agreed that the long jaunts broke the Potters' back.

KNOWLTON was also anxious to point out the fine work of Grimes, a very hard fellow to stop. "He's a great football player. He ran that way against Niles last week," Knowlton said.

In the Niles game, in which Alliance came out with a 12-12 tie, Grimes picked up 147 yards. Last night at Patterson field the workhorse of the Alliance backfield ripped off 144 yards in 20 carries. And this didn't include his 95-yard runback of an intercepted pass.

Bryant, who came into the game with a mark of 1,100 yards rushing and 118 points, did enough damage to the Potters with his runback on the kickoff and wasn't called upon to do much running in the first half, since Grimes had things pretty well under control.

BRYANT was injured on the last play of the first half when he intercepted a Baker pass and returned to midfield, where Baker met him and bounced him off of bounds with a hard bump. Knowlton explained that Bryant suffered a slight concussion and seemed to be a little dizzy so he didn't want to take a chance of using him any more last night.

The Aviators didn't go into the air during the first half, but quarterback Doug Wade, another good one in a long line of Alliance signal callers, loosened his arm for two passes of 18 and 25 yards to Rod Washington in the second half. The 18-yarder helped set up the Aviators third-period touchdown.

Six Young Businessmen Take Control Of Braves

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—A syndicate of six young Midwest business executives and Milwaukee Braves president John McHale assumed the job of rebuilding the club's sagging fortunes today after purchasing control of the National League entry from longtime owner Lou Perini.

Perini, a 59-year-old construction magnate with headquarters near the Braves' old home in Boston, announced sale of 90 per cent of the club's assets for $5.5 million Friday.

Perini, who startled the baseball world by moving the Braves to Milwaukee shortly before the start of the 1953 season, surprised most observers with his announcement at a hastily called news conference.

Rather than break away from the game entirely, however, Perini said that his corporation would retain a 10 per cent interest in the club. He will remain as chairman of the executive committee and as a member of the board of directors.

The syndicate of new owners is headed by two former directors of the Chicago White Sox, William C. Bartholomay, 34, of Lake Forest, Ill., and Lake Geneva, Wis., and Thomas A. Reynolds Jr., 34, of Northfield, Ill. Bartholomay is a Chicago insurance broker and Reynolds is a partner in a Chicago business firm.

McHale, 41, Perini's choice to become general manager in 1959 and then to assume the additional responsibility of president last year, will remain in both positions as well as being a co-owner.

Other members of the new group are John J. Louis Jr., 37, of Phoenix, Ariz., and Cable, Wis.; Daniel C. Searle, 36, a Winnetka, Ill., business executive; James B. McCahey Jr., 41, a fuel company executive from Evanston, Ill., and Delbert W. Coleman, 36, of Winnetka, a prominent investment executive.

The new owners assume control at a time when the Braves' fortunes are at their lowest ebb since their final season in Boston in 1952. They drew more than one million fans in their first nine years in Milwaukee, reaching a high of 2,215,504 for 73 home dates in 1957.

The club dropped to fifth place this past season and attendance dipped to 767,221 despite an expanded schedule in a 10-team league. It now is in the process of negotiating a new contract for the county-owned stadium, which is not involved in the sale of the team's assets.

4 Teams Duel For Titles In West Virginia

By The Associated Press

Four West Virginia high school football teams battled in Charleston and Beckley today for the top prizes in state schoolboy football—championships of the Class AAA and A divisions.

Bluefield, on the strength of its long skein of victories and devastating offensive power, was viewed by many as the favorite to defeat Parkersburg for the Class AAA crown at Charleston.

The Class A championship game at Beckley featured Rainelle, a 20-game winner, and Sophia, which came on strong this season after losing nine consecutive games in 1961.

Parkersburg had won the state championship five times going in to today's encounter. Bluefield's "eager Beavers" had won the triple-A title once — 19-13 over Parkersburg three years ago.

The winner in Charleston dethroned defending Class AAA champion Weirton. The Red Riders faced Parkersburg in their final game of the season and were edged.

Winfield, last year's Class A playoff champion, finished among the top six teams in the state rated by the West Virginia Secondary School Activities Commission. But the Generals failed to accumulate enough rating points to qualify for the Class A playoff this year.

Conspicuously absent today was a Class AA championship game. This one, scheduled for Weston, has been delayed in order to determine whether Bridgeport or Keyser will face Summersville, which already has qualified for the title game. The Secondary School Activities Commission must wait until later this month to determine the second rated team in Class AA. The decision will be based on how two of Keyser's defeated opponents fare against Maryland teams Thanksgiving Day.

Denison And Oberlin Duel In Soccer Finals

JACKSONVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Today's final of the NCAA Mid-West College Soccer Tournament is an all-Ohio affair—Denison vs. Oberlin.

Oberlin advanced to the finale of the four-team playoff by shutting out host MacMurray 5-0 Friday. Denison won a 3-2 sudden-death overtime tussle with favored Wheaton.

The winning goal in the Big Red game was booted by center halfback Bill Marks from 55 yards out.

In 15 games with Tulane, Johnny Vaughn - coached Mississippi teams have claimed 12 decisions. His 12-3 record began with a 27-14 victory in 1947.

Hornung Set For Duty As Packers Face Colts

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Green Bay Packers, probably in danger of losing a game one of these seasons, may have Paul Hornung back to fulltime duty Sunday to lend assistance to an attack that hasn't missed him a bit.

While the versatile halfback-kicker was hampered, the Packers' Vince Lombardi was able to call on only three or four capable replacements who ran and occasionally passed like new Hornungs, if not like Hornung himself.

Now Paul, the National Football League's most valuable player last season, comes back after a month of leg trouble in a kind of rich-get-richer situation to beef up a Packer squad that has only won all nine of its games, ranks first in total offense and total defense, has scored more points than anyone else in the league and—to overcome these shortcomings—owns the hardest-to-score-against defensive unit.

For once, the Packers may need Hornung since the defending NFL champs face in Green Bay the Baltimore Colts, who held them to a 17-6 margin the last time the two met. The game, feature of another seven-games Sunday in the NFL, opens probably the toughest stretch the mighty Packers will face until the championship game itself at the end of the season. Once finished with the Colts, the Packers will head for Detroit and their annual Thanksgiving meeting on Thursday with the Lions.

If they're still unconquered after that, they'll be next to odds-on for the first unbeaten record by an NFL team since the Chicago Bears of 1942, and the first by a Green Bay club since 1929.

The Colts, although they have only a 5-4 record, should give the Western Division leaders more of a test than the Eastern leaders, the New York Giants, face from their opponent at Yankee Stadium—the Philadelphia Eagles.

Philadelphia, the flop of the NFL season, has won only one, lost seven and tied one and moves against the pass-happy Giants still reeling from last week's 49-0 loss to Green Bay.

In other games, the Western runner-up Lions (7-2) are at Minnesota (2-7); the Chicago Bears (5-4) are at Dallas (4-4-1); San Francisco (3-6) at Los Angeles (1-8); Eastern runner-up Washington (5-2-2) at Pittsburgh (5-4); and St. Louis (2-6-1) at Cleveland (4-4-1).

The Stanley Cup champion Toronto Maple Leafs began the hockey season with two new faces. They are Kent Douglas, 26, and Jim Mikol, 24.

Taylor Feels Bucks Will Be Surprise

Magic Of Lucas Gone, OSU Opens 1962-63 Cage Campaign Dec. 1st

By HAL PARIS

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio State, with the magic of the great Jerry Lucas now only a fond memory, embarks on its 1962-63 basketball campaign Dec. 1.

And the road may be a bit bumpy for the once - awesome Buckeyes.

The setting at St. John Arena will be the same but the air may be tinged with nostalgia.

Gone is the incomparable Lucas, a three-time All-America who catapulted Ohio State to undreamed-of glory.

Graduation also took such notables as John (Hondo) Havlicek, who some believe was as good as Lucas, and playmaker Mel Nowell.

This terrific trio carried the Bucks to the peak of basketball supremacy—a gaudy 78-6 mark over a three-year span, one national championship and two second-place finishes to Cincinnati in the NCAA title chase.

Coach Fred Taylor, the man who guided Ohio through the "golden era," has his work cut out for him.

But the congenial Buckeye boss is far from pessimistic.

"I'm looking forward to this season," Taylor told a press gathering. "I think we're going to surprise some people."

Ohio State's goal is a fourth consecutive Big Ten championship, a feat accomplished only once before. The University of Chicago turned the trick in the 1907-1910 seasons.

"I figure the conference is balanced enough so that a 10-4 record can win the title. We have as good a chance as anyone else of making 10-4," Taylor contends.

The "new look" Bucks also hope to keep alive a 34-game winning streak at home. The long skein was fashioned by Lucas and Co. during their three-year tenure.

Taylor pins his hopes for a successful season on two returning starters and Gary Bradds, groomed last year to replace Lucas.

Back are Capt. Doug McDonald, a 6-foot-5 forward from Fostoria, and guard Dick Reasbeck of Martins Ferry. The two seniors were the No. 4 and 5 scorers, respectively, on last year's squad with 218 and 213 points.

McDonald hit a nifty 51 per cent from the floor and Reasbeck fired at a 44 per cent clip.

"Neither has reached his potential yet," Taylor says. "Reasbeck is the best shooter on the squad and is capable of being an excellent player."

Bradds, an aggressive 6-8 performer from Jamestown, is counted on to supply a much-needed scoring punch.

As a sub last year, he scored only 123 points but registered a torrid 69 per cent from the field.

"We know he's going to be playing in Lucas' shadow but we think he's going to make an excellent Big Ten center. I wouldn't trade him for anyone else in the league," Taylor adds.

Rounding out the first five are 6-4 Jim Doughty, a tremendous jumper from Columbus, and 6-3 Dick Taylor, a Cuyahoga Falls guard rated the best defensive player on the squad.

Two first-year men to watch, according to Taylor, are Dick Ricketts, a fiery guard from Belle Center and 6-8 Jim Shaffer of Gahanna, who figures to be Bradds' relief.

Don Flatt of Brooklyn, N.Y., who saw considerable action a year ago, will switch from guard to a corner post.

Others on the squad are sophs Tom Bowman, Columbus; Jim Brown, Martins Ferry; Dick Thies, Cincinnati; Carter Castlow, New Martinsville, W. Va.; and juniors Leroy Frazier, New Boston, and Don Devroe, Port William.

Taylor says the Buckeyes need "close to a peak performance" every time they play, and adds: "I think some of these kids are going to be a pleasant surprise."

Pittsburgh Rens Bow To Chicago In Opener

By The Associated Press

The Chicago Majors, a band of wandering nomads who have yet to play at home, were rolling along at a 500 clip in third place in the American Basketball League today.

The Majors, who have played more games than any other team in the young season, four, spoiled the Pittsburgh Rens' home debut 97-89 Friday night, in the only league action.

As a wedge of Canadian geese flies along, it seems to undulate, an illusion created because the strong, measured wing beats are not in unison.

OFF THE RECORD

How Can I? By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. How can I freshen the atmosphere in a moldy or musty-smelling basement?

A. If you'll spray some unslaked lime on the walls of your basement, this will freshen not only the basement itself, but also the atmosphere of the whole house.

Q. How can I remove paraffin easily from a container in which it has been melted for some canning?

A. Fill the container with boiling water, then allow this to cool. The paraffin will float on the surface of the water.

Q. What is a good idea for identifying my phonograph records easily when they're mixed with others at a party?

A. With a thin brush dipped sparingly into some quick-drying enamel, brush a double stripe down the edges of your stacked-up records, being very careful that no paint seeps through in between the records. It's then a simple matter to pick out your records with their identifying dots.

Q. How can I make a simple, harmless, and effective whitener for my dainty curtains and fine linens?

A. A tablespoonful of powdered borax, added to your final rinse water, will do this.

Q. How can I remove old varnish from furniture before revarnishing?

A. By using three tablespoons of washing soda to one quart of water, and applying this with a rough cloth.

Q. How can I give my suede shoes and purses a good cleaning?

A. After sandpapering these items lightly, wipe them off with a cloth moistened with vinegar.

Junior Editors Quiz on CONGRESS

QUESTION: What are people doing when they are filibustering?

ANSWER: It has been a cherished tradition in the United States Senate that each senator has the right to full expression of his opinions, without regard to the length of time he takes to express them. As long as he speaks as the senator in our picture is doing, he may continue to hold the floor. Because of this tradition, it has been possible for single senators, or small groups of them, to prevent a vote on a bill which they oppose and yet which they believe the majority will vote for. By making very long speeches, demanding roll calls and so on, they may force their opponents to come to terms with them, even to drop the proposed bill, because of time getting short and there being so much other important business to be done. The use of such tactics is called "filibustering." Senator La Follette once held the floor for 18 hours and 23 minutes and Senator Thurmond filibustered for 24 hours and 18 minutes. Opponents of filibustering claim that it gives a minority a chance to thwart the will of the majority. A "closure" rule, adopted in 1917 and amended in 1959, enables the Senate to end a filibuster if two thirds of the members present and voting favor it.

FOR YOU TO DO: You can learn a great deal about how your country is run by taking a part in the elections and voting in your school. When you vote, you have the good feeling that you really belong.

Antoinette Moore of Ada, Okla., wins $10 for this question. Mail yours on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of The Review. You may win $10 or the weekly grand prize of a set of Britannica Junior Encyclopedias.

9 Area Indices Up

General Uptrend Marks Business

Bounding back from the vacation season doldrums, East Liverpool area business and industrial indices showed a general upward trend in October, the Chamber of Commerce said today in its monthly summary of conditions.

Nine of the 13 indices showed gains last month, compared with September, and four were off. In a comparison of the cumulative totals for the first 10 months of the year against the same time in 1961, there were 11 increases and only two declines.

GAINS WERE shown last month in bank clearings and debits, postal receipts, inbound and outbound railroad carloadings, river tonnage, sales of new and used cars and parking meter receipts.

On the other side of the picture, the city's relief load rose slightly and there were comparatively small declines in industrial employment and payrolls.

One of the brightest facets was the sharp gain in new car sales, usually regarded as a bell-wether of business generally.

New passenger car registrations in Columbiana County hit 407 in October, up 90.2 per cent from the 214 shown in September. They stand at 2,948 for the first 10 months of the year, an increase of 22.5 per cent from the 2,407 shown at the same time in 1961.

USED CAR sales hit 970 last month, a gain of 31.1 per cent from the 740 shown in September. They total 10,634 for the first 10 months of 1962, up 48 per cent from the 7,186 shown at the same time last year.

Parking meter receipts shot up to $6,408 last month, an increase of 22.2 per cent from September's $5,243. They total $52,483 for the first 10 months of the year, a gain of 1.2 per cent from the $51,848 shown at the same time in 1961.

Bank clearings hit $3,204,373 in October, a 9 per cent gain from September's $2,940,620. They total $33,246,125 for the first 10 months of the year, a boost of 3.5 per cent from the $32,130,642 shown at the same time last year.

Bank debits hit $21,653,883 in October, a gain of 1.9 per cent from September's $21,257,511. They averaged $22,728,097 monthly for the first 10 months of 1962, a boost of 2.5 per cent from the $22,176,069 average shown at the same time in 1961.

POSTAL RECEIPTS climbed to $18,268 in October, an increase of 14.1 per cent from the $16,018 shown in September. They total $186,068 for the first 10 months of the year, down 3.6 per cent from the $193,006 shown at the same time in 1961.

INBOUND carloadings in October hit 211, a gain of 13.4 per cent from the 186 listed in September. They total 2,434 for the first 10 months of the year, a gain of 22 per cent from the 1,995 shown at the same time in 1961.

OUTBOUND carloadings totaled 291 in October, a gain of 30.5 per cent from the 223 shown in September. They total 3,429 for the first 10 months of the year, a boost of 49.7 per cent from the 2,291 shown at the same time in 1961.

DISTRICT dams locked through 438 tons in October, a drop of 7.4 per cent from the 473 shown in September. The dams handled 4,778 riverboats in the first 10 months of the year, a boost of 4.3 per cent from the 4,579 listed at the same time in 1961.

OCTOBER'S river traffic represented 1,382,600 tons of freight, a gain of 0.6 per cent from September's 1,374,900 tons. Tonnage in the first 10 months of 1962 totaled 14,837,300, a boost of 9.4 per cent from the 13,560,950 tons shown at the same time in 1961.

PAYROLLS in 12 area factories totaled $1,053,604 in October, off 5.3 per cent from the $1,112,524 shown in September. Despite the drop, the wages paid out in the first 10 months of 1962 stand at $12,546,131, an increase of 7.5 per cent from the $11,665,437 shown at the same time in 1961.

EMPLOYMENT at the same plants totaled 3,467 in October, off 0.01 per cent from September's 3,469. Employment averaged 3,753 monthly for the first 10 months of 1962, a drop of 3 per cent from the 3,868 listed at the same time in 1961.

THE CITY'S relief case load was 67 in October, up 1.5 per cent from September's 66. It averaged 79 monthly in the first 10 months of 1962, down 31.9 per cent from the 116 average shown at the same time in 1961.

BOY'S TRAFFIC death ruled as accidental. The traffic death of a 5-year-old Wellsville boy has been ruled "accidental" by Dr. Roy C. Costello, deputy county coroner, following an investigation.

IN HIS ruling, Dr. Costello exonerated Wellsville Safety - Service Director Fred Baldasare in the death Wednesday of David James Shultz, son of Mrs. Betty Underwood Shultz, 400 8th St.

THE YOUTH died in Osteopathic Hospital of a fractured skull and concussion Wednesday night, 11 hours after he stepped into the side of the Baldasare auto on Washington St.

GAY 20's REVIVED. Kathy Conklin and Shelley Wallace demonstrate the "Charleston" dance they will perform at the Chester Lions Club community minstrel show tonight at 8 at Chester High School. Sayre W. Graham, interlocutor, looks on. The club expects 500 to attend the event with proceeds to be used for Chester City Park improvements. There will be traditional minstrel fare along with specialty acts and a "Miss America Beauty Contest."

Three Races For Governor Still Remain Up In The Air

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of dollars apparently must be spent and millions of votes recounted to determine at least three governors and one senator. And another gubernatorial race is so close it may go to a recount.

With the election 11 days old, residents of Massachusetts, Maine, Minnesota and Rhode Island still don't know for sure who their next governor will be. The same applies to a Senate seat in South Dakota.

The latest figures show: In Massachusetts, Democrat Endicott Peabody won the official count 1,051,653 to 1,048,562 for Republican Gov. John A. Volpe, a margin of 3,091 votes. Volpe is seeking a recount.

In Maine, Republican Gov. John H. Reed won re-election by 621 votes over Democrat Maynard Dolloff. But Dolloff has filed for a recount of the official tabulation which gave him 146,121 votes to Reed's 146,742.

In Minnesota, Democratic Lt. Gov. Karl Rolvaag held a 98-vote lead over Republican Gov. Elmer T. Andersen as an official canvass of the votes neared the end. The loser probably will ask a recount.

In Rhode Island, Republican challenger John H. Chafee held a

Duluth Fights To Save Life Of Mongoose

DULUTH, Minn. (AP)—Duluth citizens and officialdom marshaled forces today to save Mr. Magoo, pet mongoose at the city zoo, from the death sentence passed on him by federal agents.

The animal, gift of a foreign seaman who visited here last week, has been ordered destroyed by the Fish and Wildlife Service.

His presence in this country is outlawed by a 1909 law, say the government agents, because of the mongoose's reputed ability to reproduce rapidly, sometimes at the rate of six litters a year.

Pooh-pooh, chorus the backers of Mr. Magoo, citing that he is a bachelor who has become a feature attraction at the zoo. The city even has offered to have him desexed.

No good, answer the federal authorities, there's that law. . . . Mayor George D. Johnson is seeking a reprieve for Mr. Magoo in a personal wire to Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall.

Meanwhile he has ordered the city attorney to seek a court restraining order against the execution.

The keepers have padlocked Mr. Magoo's cage and report they have thrown away the key. Citizens are circulating petitions, wiring and writing their congressmen.

Mr. Magoo continues to enjoy his drink of tea now and then. And, tamed by his former sailor owner, he nestles contentedly against the neck of any keeper who picks him up, just as though there wasn't any such thing as a death sentence.

Copter Saves Hunter Lost For 24 Hours

TROUT LAKE, Mich. (AP) — An Air Force helicopter search team has rescued an 82-year-old Ohio hunter who was lost for 24 hours in the woods of Michigan's upper peninsula.

Frank Young of Sheffield Lake, Ohio, who lost his way while deer hunting, was taken to a hospital in Sault Ste. Marie for treatment for shock and exposure Friday. His condition was listed as good.

The temperature dropped to 25 degrees Thursday night while the elderly man roamed the huge Marquette National Forest near here.

Young was reported missing at noon Thursday after he failed to return to his hunting party's car parked at the forest's edge.

Dozens of state troopers and volunteer searchers combed the woods before the helicopter crew spotted Young about a mile from where he had entered the forest.

Young was a member of the Sheffield Lake Fire Department for 30 years.

$726,304 Budget Set For West Virginia Fete

CHARLESTON (AP) — A tentative budget of $726,304 has been approved for financing West Virginia's 100th birthday celebration.

The Centennial Commission made the figure official at a meeting here Friday. The budget does not include money to be raised and spent locally.

Commission Executive Director Carl L. Sullivan said $225,000 — nearly one-third of the total budget — is being earmarked for operation of the nine-car exhibition train which will travel throughout the state promoting the observance.

The commission's original overall goal was $1 million.

Sullivan said there still is some prospect of meeting the goal.

"There must be some way we can reach it yet. We won't let our guard down until we do."

In addition to the commission's budget, Sullivan said about $255,000 will be raised at the local level for home-town observances of the event.

Total money anticipated at this point, Sullivan said, is $992,000. This includes receipts of $540,000, of which $384,586 remains from the total of $400,000 in legislative appropriations for the commission.

Also included in the figure is $85,639 from a statewide fund-raising drive; $25,393 in pledges and a $50,000 grant from the Benedum Foundation.

Sullivan said county fund-raising programs are expected to net an additional $280,697 and $150,000 is anticipated from county courts and municipalities — assuming the 1963 legislature approves a bill to be introduced on behalf of the commission.

Other final decisions made by the commission include approval of a song, "This Is My West Virginia," as official centennial theme. The song was composed by Mrs. Iris Bell of Charleston.

Sullivan also reported progress on other centennial projects.

A showboat will start a 426-mile voyage along all the navigable rivers of the state about May 1. The trip will start at Montgomery.

Five finalists in the centennial queen contest will be chosen in Charleston Dec. 14-15. The winners will ride a centennial float in the New Year's Day Tournament of Roses parade in Pasadena, Calif.

A scheduled appearance of the Pittsburgh Pops Orchestra may be moved to Weirton at the request of the director of the Wheeling Symphony.

Fate Of Escapee Left To Governor

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The fate of John P. Halloran lies with Gov. Michael V. DiSalle.

Halloran, 55, is a respected industrial employee, World War II veteran, husband—and a 1933 escapee from Mansfield Reformatory.

Since Halloran and another inmate, Henry Pyle, scaled the reformatory fence 29 years ago, Halloran has been a respected member of society. Even his wife, whom he married in 1947, knew nothing of his convictions for burglary and car theft and his three years in prison.

He was known as John Allen from 1933 until this Oct. 26 when detectives confronted him after Pyle was recaptured Sept. 26.

These were among the statements made to the Pardon and Parole Commission Friday as it heard testimony by Halloran's wife and an attorney who urged clemency.

Immediately after the hearing the commissioners prepared an undisclosed recommendation to the governor.

Halloran and Pyle both are in Ohio Penitentiary, pending any clemency action in their cases.

Officials at the Eaton Axle Division plant in Cleveland where Halloran worked as a gauge inspector have said he has a fine work record and "his job is waiting when he comes back."

Kent State Planning Educational TV Unit

KENT, Ohio (AP)—If the Federal Communications Commission approves, Kent State University will go on the air some time next February with a 1-kilowatt educational television station, President George A. Bowman has told university trustees.

The trustees Friday approved plans to ask the FCC for a construction permit for the station on UHF channel 55.

At present the university operates a closed-circuit television system. Converting this to a broadcast-type system would cost about $75,000, Bowman said.

Bowman also told the trustees the university will ask the new Ohio legislature to approve nearly $12 million for capital improvements.

ART TALENT HUNT Being Conducted in Ohio Area

Young men and women with a natural gift for drawing are being sought in this area right now. The purpose of the Art Talent Hunt is to locate talent that could be developed for commercial art careers. This search is prompted by the nationwide need today for new art talent.

Have you always liked to draw? Does an art career interest you? If you have talent with promise, this may be your chance to be "discovered." So enter your name.

Over $11,000,000,000 is being spent this year for advertising alone—much of that for art. Millions of drawings and paintings must be made each year now by commercial artists. More artists are needed and new talent welcomed. The young person with a gift for drawing does well to consider a future in some branch of the commercial art field.

What do you especially like to draw? Advertising artists draw or paint almost everything—faces, figures, animals, scenes, fashions, boats, cars, and many other products.

Perhaps you have dreamed of illustrating magazine stories. Or painting magazine covers, paperback covers, record album covers. Or designing greeting cards.

Cartooning may be what appeals to you. Cartoonists are used for advertising—especially television. They also do editorial cartooning. They sell cartoons to magazines. They create and syndicate their own newspaper cartoon strips. Many commercial artists specialize in painting murals for stores, restaurants and public buildings. Others develop a profitable clientele for original portraits for homes, firms, institutions—portraits of someone's beautiful wife or daughter, of widely known personages.

The competent artist finds almost unlimited call for his work. More than this, he has the satisfaction of expressing himself in his career. This is true whether he is simply earning a comfortable income or has soared to the upper reaches of his profession through an exceptional gift, fully developed.

Before you set your heart on an art career, get a professional artist to appraise your talent. You can do this now, without cost or obligation, by taking an Art Talent Test by yourself, at home. This test is being contributed by a well-known art school. You take the test in your spare time. When you have completed it, you return it to the school. Professional artists will examine your test and let you know whether you have the necessary talent for an art career.

If your talent looks promising to the professional eye, you will receive expert counsel as to your own future in art. Send today for your free Art Talent Test.

Just an Afterthought

After the coffee has touched my lips;
After I've finished my pain-racked flips;
After I'm normal, like as not,
My helpmate will tell me: "The coffee is hot."

After the auto coughs, sputters, and stops;
After on all sides there's nothing
but crops;
After we're out there where no one
will pass,
My wife says: "I knew we didn't have much gas."

After a dinner dance, one of these days;
After the others have all gone their ways;
After I screw up my courage, I'm going To say to her softly: "Your slip, dear, is showing." —Dick Emmons

The teen-age son had done it again—
asked his father for a rather large advance on his allowance.

"Sit down, boy," the father said gruffly.
"I want to talk to you. I want to remind you that there are more important things in life than money."

"Sure, Dad," the youth replied, "but they won't go out with you if you're broke."

She decided on a little psychology and read the youngster the story of the Pilgrim
Fathers and how they attended church

"They never missed Sunday school and way."

The impresario had handled all kinds of dog acts for the stage, so he wasn't surprised to see a trainer come into his office with a collie that was supposed to be an expert at playing cards.

"We'll invite three people from the audience," the trainer said, "and, you watch,
he'll beat them."

The skeptical impresario called in three office workers, and the dog dealt out a hand of poker. He won easily—as he did most of the following games. "What about it?" the trainer said. "A card-playing dog!"

"Sorry, not good enough," the impresario said. "Every time he gets a good hand he wags his tail."

SARAKA SOLVES THE PROBLEM OF "AFTER 45" IRREGULARITY

Doctor-approved bulk stimulant helps keep you comfortably on schedule as no ordinary laxative can!

As we grow older, our systems may often need outside aid to help maintain a normal regularity pattern. Continued use of strong drug laxatives can be irritating, even dangerous. That's why many doctors recommend SARAKA, the pure, all-vegetable bulk stimulant laxative for middle age and over. SARAKA supplies the moist, bland bulk that is so essential to healthy bowel function. And only SARAKA has a gentle stimulant action to help ease this bulk through your system
plus Vitamin B<sub>1</sub>.

Special note to weight watchers: Lack of sufficient bulk in 900 calorie liquids can lead to constipation. If this occurs, supplement your daily diet with all-vegetable SARAKA.

become a serious singer were thwarted by a saucy face which one impresario said "was too cute to make an audience feel anything but gay." She won beauty contests, appeared in night clubs, and became a Broadway star in "Wonderful Town" and "L'l Abner." While singing and acting as stooge to a Philadelphia tv "comer," Ernie Kovacs, she also became a wife.

When Ernie moved into the big time, Edie could afford to let her own career "take whatever came along" and become a stepmother almost full-time.

"It took us a long time," she says, "to learn that the children didn't resent discipline but needed it. It made them feel we cared about them. It took Ernie even longer, though, to curb his generosity. He would go on crazy buying sprees, especially on the girls' birthdays, and I would try to hide some of the presents and give them out later when the girls could appreciate each individually. Ernie understood this and approved, but he had a hard time doing it himself."

Whenever the Kovacs' careers took them from Beverly Hills, Petty and Kippie would accompany them. It was important, Ernie believed, that they realize they had "come home for good." When the girls began school, travel became impossible for them, and Ernie once told FAMILY WEEKLY: "The girls adjusted to us being apart, but we never did."

Betty was secure enough to accept another sister with the birth of Mia. "But Kippie had been replaced as our 'baby,'" Edie recalls. "For any child, that's hard. For Kippie, maybe it was harder. But she loved dolls, even more than other girls, so we asked her to help take care of this little doll-like sister. Kippie helped bathe her and comb her hair, and pretty soon dolls and rivalry were forgotten and all Kippie's love was with Mia. I was working last September when Mia started kindergarten, so Kippie took her on the first day. I think it was Kippie's proudest moment."

EDIE WAS NOT always happy with Ernie's contributions to the girls' education. "I told him he was making them too 'hip,' telling them too much about the toughness and problems of the adult world. As it turned out, I'm thankful he did."

Until they lost their father, the older girls had showed little interest in their parents' careers. "They didn't even watch our tv shows," Edie says ruefully, "but now that's different. Because I won't be around as much, I started to tell them a lot about my business—oh, I'm not letting them get involved, just interested. And they've begun to take a more active part in our lives just as Ernie intended, from Kippie selling her horse to Betty telling me what number I should do to win the teen-age audience."

At 3, of course, Mia cannot understand

After "Mad, Mad World," Edie will costar in "Call Me Bwana" opposite Bob Hope.

why her mother disappears for days at a time. "If I'm away on location for more than two weeks, I take Mia along just as we did with Betty and Kippie when they were younger. But when it's just a week or so, I phone Mia at home every night and tell her what I've been doing and that I have to work a few more days before I can see her."

Several weeks ago while filming her tv shows in New York, Edie telephoned Mia and heard a familiar question: "When can I go to work with you, Mommy? I want to go with you."

"Maybe next time," Edie said. It was a troublesome "maybe." The Bob Hope movie would go into production in London within a few weeks, and Edie had to decide now whether she felt her career was advancing on her own talent or on the misplaced sympathy of friends.

THE ANSWER turned up in work she already had done: in "Mad World," they wanted extra scenes; in "Call Me Bwana," her part was being fattened; her tv sponsor was excited about doing shows from London and possibly Salzburg; headlines and memories were dimming, but not demands for Edie Adams. Confident as she had not been before, she signed for "Call Me Bwana" and almost immediately telephoned Mia in Hollywood.

"I'm going to work in London," she said, "and this time you're going with me." Edie knew that the other girls would be listening, too—old enough to understand Mia going with Mother yet young enough to feel left behind.

But Edie had anticipated this possibility. She already had visited their school principals and "made a deal in case things turned out right." She called Betty to the telephone.

"If you and Kippie work extra hard," Edie said, "you can fly over later. We can all be together for Thanksgiving. But you have to work hard!"

"We will!" Betty shouted. "That's something worth working for!"

In the past months, Edie Adams and her family have learned that many things are worth working for. Not the least of them is the feeling of standing on your own, trading on nothing but your own talent and self-reliance.

How Strict Should Parents Be?

A child-guidance expert comes to the rescue of mothers and fathers caught in the cross fire between exponents of "get tough" and "go easy"

By JOHN A. ROSE, M.D.

Director, Philadelphia Child Guidance Clinic

WHETHER IT'S BETTER to be a disciplinarian or a permissive parent is a difficult question which, I suspect, will be troubling us always.

Excessive discipline may inhibit children, and excessive permissiveness may result in resentment of any supervision, thus causing children to become destructive to themselves and to others. To strike a happy balance is the ideal that parents should strive to achieve.

The dangers of excessive permissiveness are graphically illustrated by a family that has become the scourge of the suburb in which it lives. The father, a man well on in years and with a frightening temper, was determined that his children win respect in the community in which he had established them in a fine hilltop home. The mother, considerably younger, wanted above all to keep things pleasant. She found it easier to ignore misconduct than to impose punishment or stir her husband's wrath.

Now the father is dead, and the mother is surrounded by an unruly brood. Her boys race cars along narrow residential roads and damage property, including the cars which they occasionally "borrow." Her two teen-age girls have a reputation for taking anything they admire from their girl friends' closets, and their two younger sisters promise to follow in their footsteps.

Because of her excessive permissiveness, this mother appears to have deprived her children of an instinctive respect for that which is good and honest. There is, after all, a right way to behave, and the earlier a child learns this the happier and more well-liked he will be.

CHILDREN brought up with a healthy amount of discipline seem to develop into the best-adjusted adults, for excessive permissiveness offers no preparation for the adult world in which improper behavior almost always evokes unpleasant consequences. It is a vital parental responsibility to teach a child what he may and may not do and, as soon as he is old enough to understand, to punish him when he does what he has been told not to do.

But, whatever the offense, there is only one justification for punishment—the need to gain a child's attention so he clearly understands that his punishment is the specific penalty he must pay for a specific act. A whipping applied to the buttocks with little delay tends to be more effective than a withdrawal of affection or banishment to a dark closet. It is also likely to do less harm. For when punishment is prolonged, the reason for it may become secondary to the fear and unhappiness it induces, and a child may feel resentment for what he has suffered rather than contrition for what he has done.

It is not uncommon to hear a well-intentioned mother say: "I really punished him; I'd had just about all I could take this past week..." Punishment for general disappointment and frustration is useless. The very need for it indicates that previous punishment has not served its purpose.

An incident that happened to actor Joel McCrea and his sons a number of years ago illustrates the way in which children can be guided to unquestioning obedience yet not cowed. One afternoon Joel called his young sons to him. "I understand you have a fort on that hill," he said, pointing to a far corner of his ranch. They said they had and, with enthusiasm, began telling him about it.

"I'd like to see your fort," he said after listening attentively. "But that's a pleasure we'll have to postpone, for I'm about to ask you not to go near that hill until further notice. Agreed?"

They nodded, and the fort was temporarily abandoned.

Several weeks later, McCrea led his sons up the hill. "You show me your fort," he told them, "then I'll show you why I had to ask you to stay clear of this territory." After the fort had been admired, they walked to a rocky ledge about 20 feet away. There lay a nest of rattlesnakes which a ranch hand had just killed.

"We knew you had a good reason, Dad," the youngsters exclaimed.

"Gee," said the oldest boy, "with all those young ones to protect, that mother rattler would have gone for us for sure!"

Joel McCrea smiled and nodded.

The McCrea boys previously must have demonstrated their obedience, so their father knew he could depend on them to do as he asked. And the friendship he displayed in showing them why he had had to deprive them of their fort could have been the basis of their trust in him.

Children are happiest and best-adjusted when they are secure—and they are secure when they know their parents will do exactly what they say, including meting out punishment when deserved.

custody battle, resumed a career, life "leveling off" again

piling up, and I had to do something. So one day I opened the door and walked in.

"It was a man's room. Paneled walls, armor, heavy furniture. I didn't want it changed, but I couldn't take that oppressiveness. I had a white piano moved in. It looked silly there, so I moved in some other frilly things. Then I could get down to work."

Edie was not alone, however. Her mother, Ada Enke, closed her home in Tenaflly, N. J., and flew to Los Angeles to help with the children. And the latter, in Edie's words, "were simply wonderful."

"Betty had always been conservative," Edie explains, "but Kippie—well, Kippie is a lot like Ernie. She had her own riding horse, and she loved it, but one day she came to me and said: 'Mother, how much is that horse costing us a month?' I looked it up and told her. 'Let's sell it,' she said. 'It's something we can do without. We can grow up.'"

In the past months, Edie admits she has "pushed" her career as never before. "I always figured one full-time career was enough for any family. Besides, the older girls needed somebody who could take time with them."

BETTY AND KIPPIE were children of Ernie's first marriage; they unquestionably needed extra attention. In their early years they were pawns in a prolonged and bitter custody battle between Ernie and his first wife. The court awarded custody to Kovacs, and he and Edie set out on the difficult course of "making things up to them without spoiling them."

The custody fight resumed after Kovacs' death. The children's natural mother sued to regain them. The courts decided the girls were old enough to decide themselves which mother they preferred to live with. They chose Edie.

Meanwhile, Edie's career spurted forward. She contracted to do six television "intimate musical reviews" for Ernie's former cigar-company sponsor, and she filmed "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World" for Stanley Kramer. Then came a tentative offer to costar with Bob Hope in "Call Me Bwana."

It was a big break for a comedienne. But Edie hesitated. Was she getting these offers because of her talents—or because people felt sorry for her or, worse, because they could capitalize on the sensational but painful publicity surrounding Kovacs' death?

"I won't sign until I'm sure it's me they want," she said, and then she put a ban on interviews that might "exploit" her personal problems.

On the basis of her past performances, Edie seemingly had little to worry about. A no-nonsense student who wanted to be a music teacher, she had spent five years at the famed Juilliard School of Music. Her attempts to

A New World for Edie Adams

In the past year, she has been widowed, waged a and fought self-doubts; now she and her daughters see

By JACK RYAN

IN THE STUDIED informality of Southern California, the dinner setting at the home of Edie Adams—or, as she calls herself, Edie Adams Kovacs—was as out of place as starched dickies.

Into a scene of candelabra, glistening china, and Irish linen swept Edie in a dinner gown on which she had concentrated much of her fashion-school training. Her daughters Betty, 15, Kippie, 13, and Mia Susan, 3, followed her in matching high fashion.

Edie viewed her assemblage and made a toast: "This is a big celebration for all of us. We've just made the big payment on your father's tennis club. Now there's only $1,949,000 to go!"

Several weeks later, Edie used the incident to show how things have changed since the death of her husband, comedian Ernie Kovacs, in an automobile accident last January. Things have "leveled off," to use Edie's favorite phrase. There is fun and hope again.

"When Ernie was alive, we used this dining room only on Thanksgiving and Christmas. Ernie loved Southern California because it was so easygoing, just outdoor barbecues and no neckties. But now our house is all girls—my daughters, mother, and I—so things are bound to be more 'dress up.'"

Edie's toast that night also gives insight into one of the problems she has faced. A free-spending, big-thinking extrovert who thoroughly dominated the household, Ernie left an estate initially estimated at $2.1 million—but claims against it run even higher.

Shortly before his death, for example, a reporter told Edie that the Kovacs were $2 million in debt, but before she could even ask her husband about it, Ernie stunned her with: "We just bought the California Racquet Club, 4½ acres, night club, shops—and mortgages."

He never got a chance to tell Edie how they were going to pay for it.

Following the fatal accident, friends like Milton Berle, Frank Sinatra, and Dean Martin seemed so certain Ernie had bungled family finances that they planned a television show to raise money for "helpless" Edie. "No," said Edie, "I can take care of my own children."

THAT EVENING TOAST gives an idea of how well she has begun: instead of unloading all of Ernie's investments, which on closer scrutiny appeared solid, she decided to try to save them by returning full-time to her career as singer-comedienne-actress. But getting back to work was a problem in itself.

"Our office was really Ernie's den," she recalls. "For months I kept it locked and never went in. But business problems kept

A Voice

THE EVENT was the 1941 Freshman-Sophomore Day at Hamilton College in Clinton, N.Y., and the contest about to begin was crucial for me. In the heavyweight wrestling match between a freshman and a sophomore, I was that freshman.

My palms were moist and my throat tight, even though I had no right to be so afraid. I had several years of wrestling experience behind me, and my opponent was probably a novice. The fact that raised my fear was this: I had to win if I was to prove to that throng of professors and students that I, who could not see, would compete with them on equal terms—and win.

I had gotten myself into this spot by coming to college in the first place, and then by volunteering to represent my class as their heavyweight against the sophomores. There could be no backing out . . .

Eleven years earlier as a child of five, I sat on the back steps of our home at 13 Edward St. in Binghamton, N.Y. The afternoon was all green and gold as I, croquet mallet in hand, halfheartedly played my solitary game.

Digging around among the pansies beside the steps, I picked up small stones which I set carefully in position on the gray concrete walk. Then I sat down on the bottom step and raised my mallet. The stones were nails; I was a carpenter, and the mallet was my hammer. I would drive those nails just like that!

And then it happened. The rotten handle split, and a flying splinter pierced the pupil of my left eye. I squeezed my eyes shut in pain, sprang to my feet, and stumbled up the steps, rubbing the blood away with my fists and screaming.

In 1930, doctors could not tell whether an infection in one eye was being communicated to the other. Secretly the poison spread, and a curtain slowly closed behind my eyelids. For me, the sun had flickered and gone out.

When I was six years old, I boarded the train for the 200-mile trip to New York City and the New York Institute for the Education of the Blind. Except for vacation, I spent the next 10 years there, going from first grade through high school. And so, during these critical years, my life was divided between two worlds—that of the Institute and that of 13 Edward St.; the world of the blind and the world of the sighted.

At the Institute, I studied, played, and dreamed with some 250 other blind children. We learned to read and write Braille, in which we did our homework. In the play periods, we developed our

in the Crowd

By ROBERT RUSSELL Author of "To Catch an Angel"

own versions of baseball and football. Our fielding was never up to much because we had to chase the ball by sound—and by the time you hear a ball bounce it isn't there any more but somewhere else. Then, too, our gym instructors modified such track events as the running broad jump and running high jump into standing events. Races were run on a cinder track divided into four lanes by waist-high steel cables on which the runner rested his left hand. Indeed, everything was designed for our safety.

The most important safeguard to our security was a tall steel fence surrounding the Institute. The worst transgression we younger children could commit was to step outside that fence without permission. Because it was forbidden and because I deeply resented being shut in, the outside world was all that I dreamed about.

Though snug and comfortable behind the fence in an environment especially created for those who could not see, I leaned for hours against the cold steel, listening, listening, listening to the whirring traffic, the hissing of the air brakes of buses, and the distant, ominous thunder of trains. I longed to be in one of those cars, on a bus or train, going . . . going . . . going anywhere, because the going would mean I was a part of what was outside.

At 10, I won a place on the Institute's wrestling team, and our occasional trips to meet nearby high schools and even the junior varsity of Columbia University took me through the fence. I was regularly defeated for two or three years, but the pleasure of breathing free air was well worth the humiliation.

The Challenge Beyond the Gate

When I was 13, I was given permission to leave the campus on weekends for several hours at a time, and it was high glory to walk out on a Saturday morning, slamming the gate behind me. The only drawback was that I had no place to go—but a destination wasn't necessary to a boy longing to be free. That whole roaring tumult of New York lay there waiting to be explored.

Over dinner on Saturday evenings, we exchanged stories of our day's adventures while pretending to deal with the week's leftovers on our plates. At one of these banquets, a classmate told me about the escalators at Macy's. The wonders of the moving steps intrigued me, and I resolved to try them. On the following Saturday morning, I set out. When I got off the subway, a girl's voice said: "Can I help you?"

"Yes, thank you. I'm going to Macy's."

"That's lucky; so am I. Come along with me." She took my arm and led me through the shuffling subway throng, through the turnstile and down a long echoing corridor. Finally, as we went through a door, she said: "Well, here we are. What part of the store did you want?"

"No particular part exactly," I stammered. "That is, I want to go to—the escalators."

"Oh, right over here. Which floor?"

"Oh, no particular one. Just the escalator."

"If you could tell me what you wanted to buy, I could help you better."

"I don't want to buy anything," I hastened, checking the solitary nickel in my pocket that would take me back to the Institute. "I just want the escalator."

"You do know where you're going?" she inquired kindly.

"Up!" I answered.

"Well, all right," she said. "Here's the escalator, but," and she patted my arm, "remember one thing: you must never be ashamed. Never. Remember that."

"Ashamed?" I said. "Ashamed of what?" But she was gone. She had gently and deftly laid one kind finger on my heart and vanished.

What I had to be ashamed of was so terribly obvious that I had to pretend not to understand. The thing was myself. I was awkward, blundering, maimed, publicly different from all these cool, swift people in the outside world. Their cheeks need never burn with the shame of tripping over an unexpected curb, walking into a lamppost, or waiting for help to cross a roaring street. They were free, easy, beautiful in their independence.

Was I not better off, after all, behind that steel fence among others like me? Safety was there; security and peace. Most of all, there was the freedom from the pain of comparing one's self with the sighted. Shouldn't I forget the escalators and all they stood for?

But her voice, still warm in my ear, said: "You must never be ashamed. Never. Remember that."

Gingerly, I put out my foot, then stepped forward, and the stair beneath me rose.

I rode the wonderful escalators up and down all morning, gaining confidence and practicing not being ashamed.

The Words Have Stayed with Me

Who the girl was, where she went, I never knew. She was a voice in the crowd that spoke to my most secret fears, a hand touching me with gentleness. The sound of her words carried me through the fence to Hamilton College and into the ring on that other Saturday morning far from Macy's. The referee's voice was saying: "Ready? Wrestle!"

I advanced toward the sound of my opponent's footsteps. The referee called to the crowd to be quiet so that I could hear. We closed sharply. He was big, powerful, but, by the way he moved, a novice. Counting on surprise, I threw up his arms, dropped to my knees, and tackled his unprotected legs. As he fell, I released my grip, slid up his body, clamped a half nelson under an arm and over the back of his head, and rolled him onto his back. Recovering from the shock, he thrashed violently. With all my strength, I crushed his shoulders into the grass.

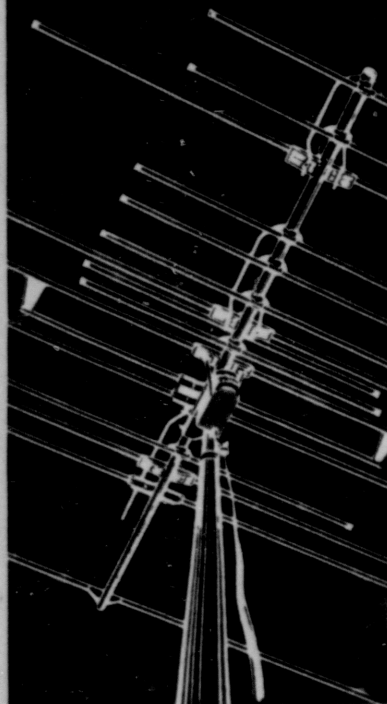

The referee's whistle jangled on its chain as he crouched to inspect my opponent's predicament. Though my adversary struggled to shake me off, he could find no leverage. The referee pounded the earth in token of my victory. The crowd cheered as I rose.

As the referee raised my arm, I knew that another escalator, though it was still the same voice, had brought me up to another floor. Other escalators carried me from Hamilton to Yale to Oxford to college teaching and to the publication of my autobiography, To Catch an Angel. Each new floor has had its own challenges—but the perils have all been different forms of the one which the girl pointed out at the foot of that first escalator in Macy's.

Winegard develops new Super-Sensitive Antenna for Color TV...

to black & white too)

Winegard Colortron with electronic power pack extends reception distance, gives much sharper pictures.

No matter how expensive your TV set, its performance depends on the sensitivity of your antenna. This is specially true for color.

Designed for color, the new Colortron antenna is far more sensitive than ordinary antennas. In fact, the Colortron antenna is so good that it is the only outdoor antenna available with a written guarantee of satisfaction.*

There are two reasons Colortron outperforms other antennas. First, a patented Electro-Lens director system intercepts more TV signals... rejects interference. Second, signals are greatly amplified by a built-in electronic power pack with two RCA nuvistors. The effect on your reception is this: Often you can pull-in stations ordinary antennas can't reach. Pictures become sharper... brighter. You can even operate as many as 4 sets simultaneously.

Dependability? Your Colortron is built to last. Gold Anodized; can't rust or dull for years of powerful performance.

Colortrons are available in 4 models, from $24.95. Electronic power pack $39.95. There's a model just right for you... Guaranteed, too. Get the full story. Ask your TV serviceman or send coupon.

I was just thinking...

I'LL BET 253926337-472426-2355 is dialing in his grave.

253-and-so-on is poor old Alexander Graham Bell who, when he invented the telephone, might well have borrowed that famous line from Samuel 3. 2. Morse and cried, "What hath God wrought!"

What A. G. Bell hath wrought in my life is now a list of numbers to bring on the Big Brother era even faster than author George Orwell predicted. Gone are the days when my heart was young and gay and my telephone number was 63-J. Now it's not even 284 or Cabbage 5-1128.

It is, instead, 2251128, zone 903, plus 1.

Things are getting even worse. Now I am forced to retain in the rusty recesses of my brain the fact that my office telephone is no longer ARTichoke

5-4220. It is 2754220, plus my extension, which is 852, and that, if I am able to flex my rigid digits long enough to get the job done, I must first dial 8 when I dial my phone.

Besides that, now that our switchboard operator has been relieved of all such nonsense as interoffice calls and outside calls, she has also been relieved of long-distance calls.

She is a nice girl, and I am happy for her. I would like to be relieved of them myself.

THIS IS BECAUSE, in order to make a long-distance call, I must now dial 8, plus 1, plus 462, plus the long-distance number, such as 5673459, and then I must tell the operator who horns into the midst of all this that my code number is 8z74163. By this time I have forgotten what I wanted to say and whom I was calling.

Naturally, it is going to be beyond the realm of possibility to expect me to make a long-distance call which also entails direct dialing to Information in Anniston, Ala., or Rock Springs, Wyo., to obtain the telephone number of the person I want to call. This is far beyond my mental mechanism, even if it is only a momentary buzz in the convolutions of that automatic chess player the telephone company is using these days.

I don't think there's a place for me in this electronic world. I can't always remember where I park my car at the supermarket, and I haven't the slightest idea what my license number is.

The telephone company is improving each shining hour, and that's ever so dandy. But how come my home phone is still an eight-party line?

Turkey Decoration

This cheerful turkey makes a fine decoration for your Thanksgiving table or buffet. To make him, you will need an orange, a paper bag, some toothpicks, and a few fresh cranberries.

Flatten one side of an orange by cutting away a small portion. Place orange cut-side-down and make a small vertical cut at one end.

Pleat a strip of paper bag (about 10"x4") and form a tail by spreading the pleats at one end. Insert the other end into the small cut. Make smaller fans for wings and insert on either side.

A cranberry on the end of a toothpick will make the turkey's head; a toothpick bit will make his bill. If you like, use cranberries on toothpicks around the base for added color.

Fill the Cornucopia!

By Melba Baehr

Give each player an old magazine and a pair of scissors. Have the players cut out pictures of fruits and vegetables such as beets, corn, pumpkins, apples, pears that would be appropriate to put in a cornucopia. At the end of five or ten minutes, the player with the largest number of harvest items is the winner. A good game for a Thanksgiving party!

- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon black pepper
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ¼ cup water

5. Toss peas and whole onions with the lemon butter. About 10 servings

Roast Turkey

Prepare a 12- to 15-lb. turkey for stuffing. Rub body and neck cavities with salt. Fill cavities lightly with stuffing; truss bird, using skewers and cord. Place, breast side up, on rack in shallow pan. Brush skin with melted fat and cover with a fat-moistened cheesecloth (moisten cloth occasionally with fat during roasting). Roast at 325°F 4½ to 5½ hrs., or until roast-meat thermometer inserted in center of inside thigh muscle registers 190°F. For easier carving, let turkey stand about 30 min.

Giblet Gravy—Remove turkey from roasting pan. Leaving brown residue in pan, pour drippings into a bowl. Allow fat to rise to surface; skim off and reserve fat. Reserve remaining drippings for part of gravy liquid. Measure 3 tablespoons reserved fat into roasting pan and blend in a mixture of 3 tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, and ¼ teaspoon black pepper until smooth. Heat until mixture bubbles. Remove from heat and blend in 2 cups liquid (reserved giblet broth and turkey drippings). Return to heat and cook rapidly, stirring constantly, until thickened. Blend in chopped cooked giblets; cook 1 to 2 min. About 2 cups gravy

- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 3 cups diced celery
- ¼ cup chopped parsley
- 1½ teaspoons poultry seasoning
- 1½ teaspoons thyme
- ¼ teaspoon black pepper

1. Fry bacon in a large sauce pot until crisp; remove bacon and crumble.
2. Pour off all but about ¼ cup fat. Add chopped onion and cook over medium heat 5 min., stirring occasionally.
3. Heat butter in a large skillet; add mushrooms and cook over medium heat about 5 min., stirring occasionally.
4. Add the rice and next four ingredients to sauce pot; mix until rice is moistened. Bring rapidly to boiling, stirring constantly. Cover and remove from heat; let stand 5 min.
5. Add bacon, mushrooms, parsley, and a mixture of seasonings; toss together lightly. Stuffing for a 12- to 15-lb. turkey

Giblet Broth—Cover giblets (except liver) and neck with water (about 1 qt.) in a sauce pot. Add 1 teaspoon salt, 3 sprigs parsley, 2 stalks celery, and 1 small onion, sliced.
